LACONIA DOCKS WITH REFUGEES

TOURISTS TELL WAR TALES

Nearly 6,000 passengers, most of them homecoming tourists from the war zone, were brought to Boston today on three liners—the Cunarder Laconia, the Allan liner Numidian and the Warren liner Sachem.

The Laconia brought the record number of 5,370 passengers, divided as follows: Saloon, 681; second cabin, 487; steerage, 4,522. But many of the first and second class passengers occupied temporary staterooms on the steerage decks.

The Laconia, which docked at 7 o'clock, was disguised as near like a battleship as possible, with her white superstructure and her two stacks painted gray. At night her lights were shrouded.

Captain W. R. D. Irvine said:

"There was very little nervousness among the passengers and little irritability, especially considering the large number and temporary accommodations for some of them. The voyage was pleasant."

TALES OF WAR.

Off the Irish coast the Laconia met a French cruiser which gave Captain Irvine a course westward. After that no vessel of importance was seen.

Many passengers had tales of war troubles. J. E. Ackerman of No. 1516 Beacon street, Brookline, with Mrs. Ackerman and Miss Grace Ackerman, were in Carlsbad, Austria, when war started. Being unable to get out of the city for several days, they looked around for diversion.

"One day," said Mr. Ackerman, "a friend proposed an auto ride to a German mobilization camp at Eger, thirty miles away. There were 75,000 troops said to be at Eger and we thought it would be quite a sight. We started. We were challenged often and, near Eger, were stopped by a German patrol. We were ordered out of the car and were lined up along the roadside, with bayonets pointing at us.

"The car was searched, even to prying up the floor boards with bayonets. Then the German officer in charge of the patrol gave us some good advice about minding our own business in time of war. We adhered to that advice strictly after that. We turned the car around and went back to Carlsbad, where we stayed until we got passes out of the country and a train to go on. We rode four days in packed coaches, changing cars often, until we finally got to Rotterdam and thence to England."

BURTON LOST BAGGAGE.

President M. Leroy Burton of Smith College, Mrs. Burton, with daughters Theodosia and Jane, and son Richard, were at Lucerne when war was declared. They were held up for lack of through trains. They lost some baggage but finally got through France to England.

WAY TO PENNANT NOW CLEAR TO FIGHTING BRAVES

By NICK FLATLEY.

After various trips to the front, after splendid come-backs, despite all sorts of slips and misfortune, those Braves are up once more in first place, alone in their glory.

For the first time this season they occupy the fore with a chance ahead to go along at a normal rate and still hang onto their hard-earned laurels.

With a full game advantage, they are listed for a double-header with the Phillies today, while the Giants have but a single game with the

$4,000 Blaze in Pierce Farm Barn

Four horses were burned to death, and a large quantity of hay, carriages, harnesses and farming implements were destroyed by a fire which early today burned one of the barns at the Pierce Farm, off Harvard street, West Roxbury. The damage is estimated at $4,000.

Envoy Denies Death of Austria's Ruler

The report that Emperor Francis Joseph of Austria has been dead for twelve days was officially denied today at the Summer residence of the Austrian ambassador at Manchester-by-the-Sea. "This is merely another of the many lies which are being circulated about Austria," was the statement. The original report was printed in The African World, a London weekly.

Declares Americans Are with England

LONDON, Sept. 9.—The Central News Agency today received a dispatch from Malta, which states:

"A distinguished American, who is in the United States diplomatic service, when interviewed declared that the Americans are heart and soul with England despite Germany's utmost efforts to curry the favor of the United States."

French Minister Reports Berlin Is Plunged in Grief

BORDEAUX, Sept. 9.—The following statement is issued by Foreign Minister Delcasse:

Despite the German government's efforts to stimulate enthusiasm by news of victories, the people of Berlin are plunged in grief. Mourning is growing universal. Business is prostrated and the cost of living in Germany rises daily. Prices of frozen meat and canned goods are increasing, as well as those for fresh food.

'SIR JAMES' TO MOVE AGAINST PROSECUTORS

"Sir" James Carlton, oxygen promoter, whose real name is said to be Jerome James Weldon, remained in seclusion today at his offices in the New Hancock Building, while investigation of his Boston record went on. Sir James threatened to visit District Attorney Pelletier's office today to have his investigators prosecuted, but up to a late hour this afternoon he had not done so.

"Sir James" and "Lady" Carlton, whom Carlton claims is his common law wife under the Scotch law, will learn his fate tomorrow at the hands of the federal immigration department. If the department finds him guilty of evading the immigration laws, he and the young woman will be deported.

When "Sir" James returns to Glasgow he will find the stockholders of the Ox Brass Manufacturing Company on hand to ask him a few questions.

HIGH NAME IS LAIDLAW.

The young woman, who has gone about under the name of "Lady" Carlton, has confessed that she was a stenographer in the offices of this company, which was promoted by Weldon. Carlton maintains he is not Weldon, but says he looks something like him.

The Glasgow authorities say that Weldon disappeared on May 20 with Miss Annie Murray Laidlaw, the daughter of John L. Laidlaw, an Edinburo chemist. "Lady" Carlton has admitted that her real name is Laidlaw.

GREAT FRENCH FORT TAKEN

By FREDERICK WERNER.

BERLIN, Sept. 9.—The French fortress of Maubeuge has fallen, according to an official announcement made here today. It is stated that the Germans took 10,000 prisoners and 400 guns. Among the prisoners, the War Office states, are four generals and many other officers of high rank.

Maubeuge, which is on the Sambre river, has been invested by the Germans for more than two weeks and most of that time had been heavily bombarded.

Maubeuge lies 125 miles northeast of Paris and twelve miles south of Mons. Its first-class fortress was greatly strengthened at the outbreak of the war and an army was lodged there when the Anglo-French army began its retreat from Belgium. The city is a strategic position of high importance, being situated upon both banks of the Sambre and commanding an important roadway. There is an extensive arsenal there, containing a great quantity of war materials.

OPEN RAILWAY LINE.

German army engineers have succeeded in establishing railway communication as far as Montmedy, according to the Cologne Gazette. French prisoners are employed upon construction work and have been utilized to build bridges and clean out tunnels.

(Montmedy is in the department of the Meuse, twenty-two miles southeast of Sedan.)

The opening of rail communication between Germany and Montmedy is of great advantage to the Germans, for it gives a route for the transportation of am-

PARIS IN PANIC AS HERRICK ORDERS ALL AMERICANS TO LEAVE

THOUSANDS ARE NOW HURRYING TO SOUTH

By FRANKLIN P. MERRICK,
Staff Correspondent of the American.

PARIS, Sept. 9.—Sudden panic seized Paris today, and many persons who had announced their intention of remaining here fled. This feeling of panic was increased when Myron T. Herrick, the United States Ambassador, ordered all Americans to leave the city at once, no matter whether they are residents or merely visitors.

The exodus to the south, which has been steady since the German invaders began to advance upon the capital, grew in volume today. So great is the mass of fugitives moving along the road to Tourains that traffic along the highway has to move at a snail's pace. In the mighty jam are persons of every rank and vehicle of every description from luxuriously upholstered limousines to donkey carts.

Many fine automobiles are being abandoned along the roadside because of the scarcity of fuel or punctured tires.

It is impossible to secure accommodations along the highways south of the city owing to the chaotic conditions arising from the great flight.

FEAR ADDS TO DISORDER.

Most of the fugitives remain cool, their only feelings being expended in vented rage against the Germans. In other sections of the city unreasoning fear has added to the disorder. Hundreds sleep at night in the fields, for the weather has been warm and dry. In the larger towns the hotels are filled to overflowing and thousands of applicants for accommodations have to be turned away nightly.

The hotels have filled the corridors and cafes with cots for which they charge $10 apiece. Almost every private residence takes in its quota, each large house usually sheltering from ten to fifteen refugees every night.

A census by military officers, working under direction of General Galliene, the military governor, shows that the population of the capital has decreased 33 per cent. this week. It is expected that within a few days this will be increased to 50 per cent. or more. Early today there had been a feeling of optimism on account of news from the front to the effect that the Germans were still being pushed backward.

GERMANS LEAVE DEAD ON FIELD.

Many refugees from the north who had fled into Paris left the city to return to their homes. It was also announced that traffic into the suburbs on the underground railway would be resumed at once.

The American Assistant Secretary of War, Henry A. Breckinridge, who came to Europe to help stranded Americans, has been instructed by his government to remain here indefinitely. These instructions were sent after Ambassador Herrick had cabled home certain information to Secretary Bryan. Colonel Allen of the American embassy staff will be under Mr. Breckinridge's orders.

Travelers from the northeast report that there are still many Germans dead lying in the fields around Compiegne, Senlis, Amiens and St. Quentin. The Germans had not taken time to bury them when they were pressing south last week after the French and English.

BISHOP STAYS AT POST.

According to an official estimate made at Bordeaux and telegraphed to this city, only 20 per cent. of the total number of French casualties are dead, many of the wounded are only slightly hurt and will soon be in condition to rejoin the colors.

During all the hard fighting around Meaux, about twenty-three miles east of the city, Monsignor Marbeaux, the Roman Catholic bishop of Meaux, remained at his post. All the other residents of the town fled, but Monsignor Marbeaux refused to do so.

Mr. and Mrs. John D. Hold Golden Wedding

TARRYTOWN, N. Y., Sept. 9.—The golden wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. John D. Rockefeller was celebrated without formality because of the illness of Mrs. Rockefeller. Mr. Rockefeller played golf, and his children and grandchildren joined him at dinner, at which was served a large cake, holding fifty candles.

PERSONALITIES IN THE GREAT WAR

THE KING OF THE TONGA ISLANDS, in the South Pacific, has declared his neutrality.

ADELINA PATTI, the opera singer, Princess Victor Dhulep-Singh, Lord Westburn and Sir John Henniker Heaton have reached London after being held prisoners in Austria.

SENATOR HENRY CABOT LODGE, who is abroad, expects to sail from Liverpool September 17 on the White Star liner Adriatic.

MRS. IRENE OSGOOD, the author, has offered the use of her home, Guilsborough Hall, the bungalow in Guilsborough Park and Rose Manor, near Guilsborough, to the British War Department for use as nursing homes.

NELSON O'SHAUGHNESSY, formerly United States charge d'affaires in Mexico City, has sailed for Liverpool, en route to Vienna, where he will be secretary of the American Embassy.

PRINCE WILHELM of Schoenaich Carolath, a first lieutenant of uhlans, was killed August 26 in battle against the Russians, according to Berlin dispatches.

CAPTAIN JOHN H. JELLICOE, father of Admiral John Jellicoe, commander-in-chief of the British fleet, is dead at his home after a life spent in the merchant marine.

MRS. WIRT DEXTER of No. 393 Commonwealth avenue, who has just reached New York from London, says a British officer told her that Russian troops had been brought through England to Belgium. Mrs. Dexter and Mrs. E. M. McCormick were in Paris when war began and lost their trunks, saving only their hand baggage.

MISS SOPHIE C. HART, a Wellesley professor, caught by the war in Petrograd, finally got a ship for Stockholm. Their vessel was guided by another, so as to evade mines. The guideship struck a mine and blew up.

MR. AND MRS. ROBERT H. GARDINER of Boston, who went to Europe as delegates to the peace conference, have returned to New York.

A. L. BOURNIQUE of Chicago, a Rough Rider, just back from Berlin, says the model of German artillery which has created such a sensation fires a huge double shell. The outer shell explodes after the projectile has gone two miles. The other shell does not explode till nine projectile strikes—anywhere up to fourteen miles.

PROF. EWALD EISERHARDT of the University of Rochester, N. Y., with his wife, went to Germany early this Summer. Since war began he has joined the colors, and she is in the Red Cross. Prof. Eiserhardt met his wife when she was teaching in a Boston private school and he was an instructor at Harvard.

PIERRE LOTI—who is sixty-four—was not allowed to enlist in the French navy. He thereupon asked to be attached to the marines serving in the defence of Paris.

KAISER WILHELM and PRINCE HENRY of Prussia are still honorary officers of the British navy, according to the September list just issued. Neither has sent in his resignation.

A. KROUPENSKI, Russian ambassador at Rome, discussing Count Witte's recent visit there, denied that Witte came to Italy to join the allies against Germany and Austria.

CHRISTOBEL PANKHURST says: "The defeat of our country and the victory of Germany would be a calamity, from the women's point of view."

CHRISTABEL PANKHURST declared at a London meeting that upon the preservation of the British Empire depended woman's enfranchisement.

DR. LUDWIG FRANK, the noted Socialist member of the Reichstag, was killed in the fighting at Luneville, according to Berlin dispatches.

W. S. KIMBALL of New York says he has received a letter from Dundee, which declares the Cossacks marched through that city for three days.

Sidelights on the War

PLAYING CARDS FOR TROOPS.

LONDON, Sept. 9.—Large supplies of playing cards and apparatus for games have been sent to the concentration camps where 6,000 German suspects and prisoners of war are held. The camps are at Aldershot, Newbury, Dorchester, Queensberry, Lancaster, Dyfrim Hall, Edinburgh and Templemore, Ireland.

AIRSHIPS IN FIERCE BATTLE

ROTTERDAM, Sept. 9.—Details of a battle in which British, French and German aeroplanes participated are told by a Dutchman who has just arrived here from Aix-la-Chapelle. He heard the story from a German flying officer, who while reconnoitering over northern France in a biplane was attacked by a British military biplane.

"With my mechanic, we made several attempts to fly higher than the British machine," the German officer narrated.

"The Englishmen checked us and by clever steering got fifty yards over us. Fotunately he had no bombs aboard or I would not be here to tell this story. We fired at him with a revolver and he returned the fire, hitting our machine several times.

"Nearing the Belgian boundary a French monoplane came to the aid of the Britisher and all three machines engaged in a battle, the aviators firing revolvers continously. Our ammunition was exhausted when we reached the German camp."

GALLIENI READY TO MAKE PARIS, IF NECESSARY, THE TOMB OF HEROES

CITY IS PREPARED FOR THE INVADERS

By GEOFFREY YOUNG.

Special War Correspondent of Boston American and London Daily News.

PARIS, Sept. 9.—After their astonishing movements, the Germans have collected themselves for a great coup.

For a time fighting tactics are unimportant. Strategy is again a deciding feature. The Germans failed to force a decisive victory on their course across France. The allied lines are not. Their temporary disposition is cemented five times as strongly as before.

Verdun is still covered. Paris is covered. The connection is protected by armies.

In Lorraine the Crown Prince's army has failed to keep pace. During the last few days Germans have discovered the allies' strength of position. They have possibly got some further news from the north. They have had to rest their men and horses after the terrific march, set up their great guns, prepare their positions and platforms and reconnoitre.

MEAN TO ATTACK PARIS.

They mean to attack Paris. No doubt of it. It is Paris or die.

There has been considerable movement of their troops to the southeast of Saint Denis. This has been construed into an attempt to turn the rear of the French positions in the frontier and to create a diversion in favor of the Crown Prince's army. It is the apparent intention to link up the German forces, and either surround the French army of Lorraine or advance them double force on Paris.

In view of the importance of time, it is more than probable that the movement south to the east of Paris is preparatory to an advance upon the capital from two directions, east and northeast.

Paris is going to be defended to the last man. General Gallieni's thirty-eight-word proclamation has created a profound impression. If it comes even to street fighting, the few survivors of the city here are prepared to see the walls burning about them.

DEATH SECRET HINTED.

I met General Gallieni today on his round of the fortifications. He is never away from the vital points. He passed in a cloud of dust. He is coldly resolute. Paris will be in ruins and the tomb of heroes before he surrenders. Perhaps I may mention an open secret that if the Germans are rejoicing in the progress of their great siege guns, towed here by from forty to fifty horses, we have a surprise quite as cheering for them here once they get to close grips.

We are all asking ourselves how far their extraordinary sense of humanity will prevent the French making use of their great secret. This is war to kill. It will be decided by the number killed. Then Lord Kitchener is an unknown factor.

Mrs. Habel Hunt Slater of Beacon street, while in England recently donated $10,000 to the Prince of Wales fund. "Mamma gave this sum for tobacco for the British soldiers," said Miss Esther N. Slater at the Touraine. It was given in the name of descendants of Samuel Slater of Webster, England.

AMERICANS HAVE NO FUNDS IN LONDON

LONDON, Sept. 9.—For the first time since the war began, the American committee had to close its main rooms before noon to prevent further crowding of altogether inadequate quarters.

Although during the first weeks the actual number of stranded Americans seeking assistance from the committee was greater, the committee quarters have been much reduced in size.

The big influx of refugees during the last few days literally swamped them.

APPLICANTS PENNILESS.

Almost all of the late applicants were absolutely penniless, without clothing other than that on their backs, hungry and shelterless.

Two men stationed at the door of the committee room had orders to give every arrival a preliminary verbal examination and admit only those whose plight was actually desperate. In this category so many of the refugees belonged that the rooms soon jammed to their utmost capacity. Late comers had to stand in corridors and wait their turn, as has been the case for the past week.

A large percentage of the "Americans" could hardly make their wants known in English. Few had any proof of their claim to American citizenship. In all cases, however, the committee is assuming that the claimants speak the truth, and is giving them first aid in the form of lodgings, with a promise of transportation to New York.

CANADA SAILING OFF.

Three ships have just left Liverpool—the White Star liner Cedric for New York and the Allan Liners Carthaginian and Digby for Canada. In both of the latter vessels there were unclaimed accommodations in all three classes, but it is believed that before they sailed all space was taken.

Another cancellation has been announced. Two thousand Americans who had passages on the Canada, scheduled to sail from Liverpool on September 13, were informed they must obtain other accommodations.

TURKEY TOOK OVER TWO GERMAN CRUISERS ON AUGUST 16, SAYS BEY

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9.—The German battle cruiser Goeben and the protected cruiser Breslau were taken over by the Turkish navy on August 16, according to A. Rustem Bey, Turkish ambassador to the United States.

"Both these warships now form a part of the Turkish fleet," he said. "The Goeben has been renamed the Sultan Selim. The Breslau has been renamed the Midilli. These vessels are now at the port of Constantinople with the rest of the Turkish fleet."

Informally, the ambassador added he was positive the United States would take no steps which might lead to complications with Turkey.

Sweden May Be Ally of Germany

Sweden may be the next entry into the battlefield of Europe, as an ally of Germany. Ferdinand E. LONDON, Sept. 9. — Captain Macpease, of the British steamer Saltpara, which was sunk by the Kaiser Wilhelm Der Grosse, admits in an interview that the British cruiser Highflyer sank the Kaiser Wilhelm in neutral waters, namely, within coastal limit of Rio Oro, Spanish territory, on the west coast of Africa.

England Will Free Captured Cargoes

Word has been received by the Boston Chamber of Commerce from Secretary of State Bryan that the British government has signified its intention of freeing, without reference to prize courts, many cargoes of captured ships belonging to neutral powers.

OBJECTIONS OF ALLIES HOLDS UP SHIP OF MERCY

NEW YORK, Sept. 9.—The Red Cross, America's ship of mercy for the wounded in the war of the powers, is held in port today by the protest of the allies—England and France—against Germans in the crew.

American negroes or Spaniards will be substituted, and the vessel will steam from this port by Thursday morning.

Miss Mabel Boardman, chairman of the national relief board of the American Red Cross, announced that the problem raised by the objections of Great Britain and France has been solved and that the Red Cross with her complement of 125 nurses and thirty-four surgeons was expected to start within thirty-six hours on her errand of benevolence.

Miss Boardman insisted that reported complaints as to the expense of the expedition were not of any moment.

"By having a special ship, expense of transportation of the Red Cross forces and necessary supplies is minimized," she said. "And in addition much of the outlay will come back to the society by using the ship to bring home stranded Americans. The ship has accommodations for about 400 people."

German Mines Sink 3 British Trawlers

LONDON, Sept. 9. — Three more Grimsby trawlers have been destroyed by Germans. The Revigo was blown up by a mine. Wreckage of the trawler Nelson has been picked up in the North Sea and news has reached here of the sinking by a German cruiser of the trawler Capricornus.

German Denies Louvain Is Burned

LONDON, Sept. 9.—An official statement from Berlin by wireless says: "A director of the German bank, Helfferich, who returned to Berlin from Belgium, denies the reports of the total destruction of Louvain. He says the southern half and part of the western portion of the town are practically undamaged and the Hotel de Ville was saved by German soldiers extinguishing the flames from surrounding houses.

German Loss Big, Declare Wounded

PARIS, Sept. 9. — Twenty-eight Prussian prisoners arrived at St. Lazare station today. Wounded soldiers who reached Paris say the German losses in killed were enormous in the Champagne country, and that a great number of prisoners were taken. One French officer estimates the prisoners at 20,000.

A MESSAGE TO MOTHERS

BOYS Filene's

Tomorrow (Thursday) Morning the Filene Store Will Inaugurate a Seasonable Three-Day

Filene's BOYS

Sale of 1,005 Boys' New School Suits (Each With Two Pairs of Trousers) $10 Filene Value $5.45

Makers of the best suits for boys in America have taken heavy losses to co-operate with us in establishing these boys' shops once for all. We followed by hewing profits close—and this is the result.

These suits are all NEW THIS SEASON—made for us—made for this sale. Why such sacrifice?

Frankly, we are not satisfied with the amount of our boys' business. Our marks were set high—too high, perhaps—but they are still to be reached—reached now instead of later.

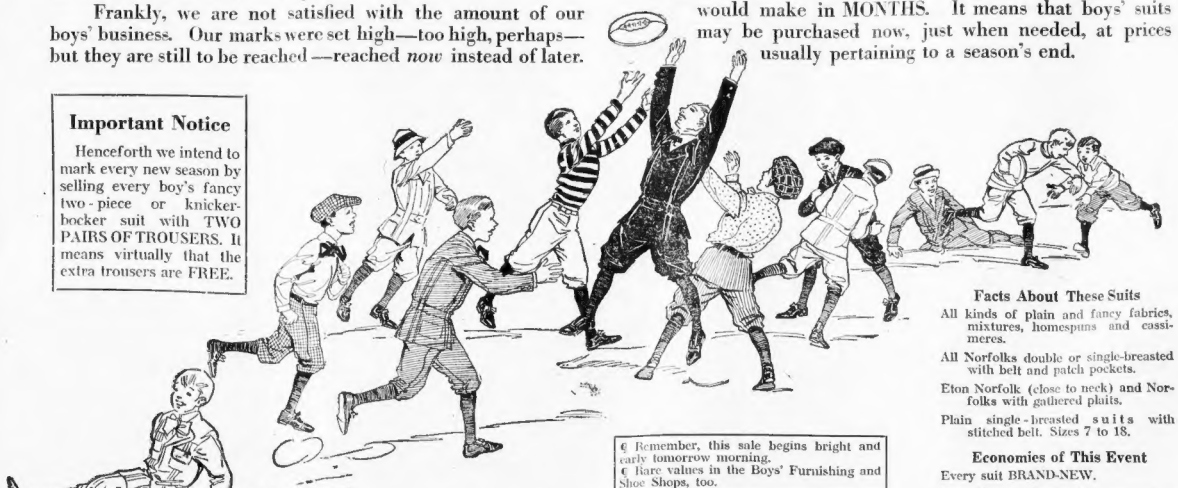
We know that our boys' clothing has been worthy, that our service has not lagged.

Our sole problem is to get many more mothers to KNOW about these shops and to GIVE THEM A TRIAL.

Hence this sale, which is primarily to make more friends in THREE DAYS than the ordinary way of doing business would make in MONTHS. It means that boys' suits may be purchased now, just when needed, at prices usually pertaining to a season's end.

Important Notice

Henceforth we intend to mark every new season by selling every boy's fancy two-piece or knicker-bocker suit with TWO PAIRS OF TROUSERS. It means virtually that the extra trousers are FREE.



¢ Remember, this sale begins bright and early tomorrow morning.

¢ Rare values in the Boys' Furnishing and Shoe Shops, too.

Facts About These Suits

All kinds of plain and fancy fabrics, mixtures, homespuns and cassimeres.

All Norfolks double or single-breasted with belt and patch pockets.

Eton Norfolk (close to neck) and Norfolks with gathered plaits.

Plain single-breasted suits with stitched belt. Sizes 7 to 18.

Economies of This Event

Every suit BRAND-NEW.

Few, if any, boys' suits represent so much woolen cloth as do these.

Knickers are cut extra full.

There is not the slightest difference between these suits and those which bring $10 in regular stocks.

—and now, Mrs. Mother-of-a-Boy, we await you, confident you will find this an unusual opportunity to provide for school

The boys' shops are on the second floor, easily reached by escalator—same floor with children's barber shop.

LONDON BELIEVES THE GERMANS ARE SEEKING PEACE

By HERBERT TEMPLE.

LONDON, Sept. 9.—Emperor William of Germany has sent an important message to President Wilson, according to an announcement made by the North German Gazette of Berlin, news of which was received here today. The North German Gazette is the chief official newspaper of the German government.

The dispatch telling of the Gazette's announcement gave no details as to whether the Kaiser's message related to reported peace proposals, but the Times today published a dispatch from its Washington correspondent that is interesting in view of the news from Berlin.

Referring to President Wilson's decision to refrain from participation in the coming campaign and the deduction drawn in some quarters that this was because the President thinks an opportunity for mediation may shortly arise, the correspondent says: "It is doubtful whether there is anything in that reading." He then adds: "Evidence, nevertheless, accumulates that the German ambassador and other German agents are assiduously spreading reports about German readiness for peace."

LONDON, Sept. 9.—The correspondent of a London newspaper telegraphed as follows from Copenhagen today:

"A telegram sent by Emperor William on September 4 to President Wilson is published here. In his message, Emperor William protested against the use of dum dum bullets by the English and against the participation of the Belgian population in the war.

"The Kaiser stated that his generals in certain cases have been prompt to punish the Belgians, but he expressed his deep regret at the destruction of Louvain and other interesting places."

CZAR NICHOLAS PLANS TO LEAD TROOPS IN PERSON INTO BERLIN

By FRANCIS LAVELLE MURRAY.
Staff Correspondent of the American.

PETROGRAD, Sept. 9.—Austrian forces are stubbornly resisting the march of the Russian army west of Rawa in Galicia, but part of General Ruzsky's troops have crossed Przemysl and have begun a bombardment of that stronghold, according to official reports from the front given out at the War Office today.

While General Ruzsky is prosecuting the campaign against the Austrians, General Rennekampf, at the head of troops numbering, according to the best available estimates, from 1,000,000 to 2,000,000 men, is pressing forward against the Germans' intrenched lines in East Prussia.

The Russian government is so confident that both of these campaigns will be successful that Czar Nicholas is making preparations to go to the front and has removed to Berlin. He will not leave the capital during the early fighting, but will depart as soon as the Russian forces reach the Oder River. It is understood that the Czarewitch will accompany him.

General Rennekampf has reported to the general staff that the Germans are concentrating several army corps (50,000 men) at Posen (155 miles east of Berlin) and at Breslau (206 miles southeast of Berlin), making these two cities the bases of their second line of defense. Half of this latter force, the Germans are supposed to have about six corps (240,000 men) according to the general staff the German forces east of the Vistula have been completed to division or due to give assistance to the Austrians in Galicia.

Sixty trains filled with Russians and Austrians wounded in the fighting about Lemberg have arrived here since Monday. Those who arrived today said that when they were taken aboard the trains Grodek was being bombarded by the Russian artillery. It was also reported here today that Russian reserves living abroad would be mobilized in their colors, but that if they so desired they could join the forces of Russia's allies.

CHARGE AT COMPIEGNE LIKE LIGHT BRIGADE'S

LONDON, Sept. 9.—Private William Shaw, a member of the Liverpool Scottish, writing to his mother, thus describes the fighting around Compiegne:

"You should have seen the German rear ranks dropped into them, but still they came for us. I was all frenzied with rifle fire, but I don't know what I could swear said it.

"The next thing I knew I was on my knees wondering if I should have enough cartridges, which I got from shooters. The guards, and so well! The next second he was rolled over with a big knock on the chest. He jumped up and roared that we had to fall back.

"They still came on, but when we finally did get the order to get at them, we made no mistake. They were cringed at the bayonet, but those on our left tried to get around us.

"We rolled like demons after racing as hard as we could for quite 500 yards. We cut up four or five German who had not run away. Then we took up a new position.

"There our cover was full of dead. At our left was the cavalry. The enemy's guns were blazing away and they got to us wholly, but not long. You have read of the charge of the Light Brigade. It was nothing to our charge."

Fear German Ships on Pacific Route

LONDON, Sept. 9.—A dispatch from Auckland, New Zealand, says that five German cruisers are in the Pacific ocean but cannot be located. They are the Breslau, Scharnhorst, Nuernberg, Stettin and Emden. The New Zealand government fears that they still raid English shipping.

The Nuernberg was last reported at Honolulu, whence she sailed supposedly to give battle to Australian warships.

The Modern Army Telegraph, Wireless and Signal System

A hundred years ago, when Napoleon fought his battles, the general commanding an army found a convenient hilltop, perched there, watched through field glasses the progress of the battle all about him, and thence gave his orders.

Couriers on horseback galloped up every few seconds with messages from the different subordinate commanders, and were dispatched on their return with oral or written orders to those commanders.

But Napoleon's army at its greatest would never have been more than a mere powerful unit in one of the great armies in the field in Europe today. And the battle fought at Waterloo is but a skirmish compared to the conflict that today is raging clear across northern France, practically from the Channel to the Swiss border.

Yet today, no less than a hundred years ago, it is absolutely necessary that one mind—one controlling force—dominate every movement of the whole army. The German advance, for instance—divided into the three armies—of the Meuse, the Meuse and the Rhine, is nevertheless coordinated by the orders of the general staff—doubtless dominated by the Kaiser. And the immense German force is moved back and forth as one man.

A GREAT SYSTEM.

This implies a tremendous system for conveying orders and information. And modern science has met this need in singularly adequate fashion. Any important development outside the forts of Paris, any advance or retreat, is known by telephone or telegraph in the German headquarters, a hundred miles or more to the rear, instantly.

The modern army is knit into a unit by a score of communication devices. The most reliable is the combined telegraph and telephone. But this is supplemented by wireless, by aeroplane and motorcycle couriers, by wig-wagging, by heliograph, by flash signals for night use, by carrier pigeons, and by scores of devices which may be extemporized under the need of the moment.

The Scientific American gives an interesting account of the combined telegraph and telephone, which is the chief reliance of an army in action today. The account reads in part:

"This remarkable instrument contains in a metal-lined leather case a small dry battery, induction coil and interrupter, key, telephone receiver and telephone transmitter.

By pressing a button on the side of the transmitter, the instrument is converted in an instant into a field telephone. Owing to the sensitiveness of the telephone receiver, the intercepting sounds sent out as Morse telegraph signals are audible even in incredibly bad line. For example, it has been worked successfully over twenty miles of bare wire laid on the ground, in rainy weather it can be made to work over a wire which has been broken, and the ends left lying fifty feet apart on damp ground.

Under good conditions, this instrument is used as an ordinary telephone. But under bad conditions, instead of telephoning "voice" it telephones the buzzer signals in Morse code. The listener, with a receiver at his ears, hears and reads the message readily.

No army unit of any size advances without unreeling behind it or erecting on poles thrust into soft earth a temporary line to be used for telegraph or telephone. So long as a regiment is a unit, one instrument suffices; but if a company is detached for active service, it keeps up its communications.

KNIT BY WIRES.

The German army, advancing into northern France, is knit together by thousands of these temporary wires. These in turn gather into headquarters, so that each regimental headquarters is in touch with division headquarters, and division headquarters in turn with the headquarters of the corps.

Germany's own magnificent telegraph and telephone system, running to the German border, and in many cases the French wires in French territory, have undoubtedly been utilized by the advancing troops.

The wireless is much used by the armies. It is especially valuable where a small group of men—a regiment or less—has departed on detached duty where it is difficult to lay a temporary wire. A small wireless outfit can be carried, either in a wagon or packed on horses and mules. It is easily set up, ready for use, and is capable of work over 25 to 150 miles. The electric current is generated by a small gasolene engine attached to a generator, or by a generator turned by a crank.

Aeroplane and motorcycle couriers, both as scouts and as dispatch bearers, are constantly flying back and forth or riding back and forth along an army's front. Our own wig-wag men in the taking of Vera Cruz showed their worth, keeping up communications with the ships. The wig-wag is effective up to ten-twenty miles, depending on weather conditions. The heliograph, under good conditions, has proved effective for eighty miles. Night flash signals are good for somewhat less. Carrier pigeons are used in an emergency, and are always carried by advancing bodies.

Tomorrow's article will be on "Keeping up the Lines of Communication".

FRENCH REPORT GERMANS CHECKED

EXODUS FROM PARIS AS MAUBEUGE FALLS

munition and stores for the armies lying along the frontier of Eastern France.

GERMAN GENERALS FALL.

By their bravery the German officers are suffering heavy losses. Major-General Von Gotha and Major-General Nicland have both been killed, it was announced today. Premier Von Weizsacker of Wurttemberg and Finance Minister von Breunig of Bavaria have both lost sons. Prince Frederick William of Hesse was wounded in the breast in France, but will recover.

Military hospitals have been established all over Western Germany, to which train loads of wounded German soldiers are being brought from Belgium and France.

These trains usually consist of passenger coaches from which the seats have been removed and replaced with cots. A hospital attendant accompanies every train and there are several surgeons.

German surgeons indignantly deny the statement that the wounds of German soldiers are badly dressed and often infected.

The transportation of prisoners into Central Germany is done with ordinary freight cars, the passenger coaches being used for the conveyance of the sound and wounded troops. In the last list of casualties the names of Lieutenant Count Uxkull and Raymond Arthur Breton are contained among the dead.

LOSS OF MAUBEUGE IS SERIOUS BLOW TO ALLIES

In view of the German announcement of the fall of Maubeuge the following story from Paris is interesting. It was received at the New York office of the International News Service five minutes after the Berlin announcement reached there:

By C. F. BERTELLI.

PARIS, Sept. 9.—The valiant defence of Maubeuge by the French is proving of the greatest value to the allied army, according to General Cherfils, an aide to General Gallieni, the military governor of Paris. General Cherfils in reviewing the situation today said:

"Although Maubeuge has been unable to arrest the in-rush of German invaders, who have passed around it, the mere fact that the fortress at Maubeuge is holding out valiantly is of the greatest value to the Allies as its strategical position commands the most direct railroad route to Cologne. The Germans need this line to transport ammunition. The single track road via Hirson, Givet, the gap of Trevas, Cologne and Coblentz is the only line of communication at present between Germany and their twelve army corps (480,000 men) in France.

While furious fighting continued today between the allies and Germans along the 160-mile battle line east of Paris, with the allies reported as forcing the Germans back, dispatches from London announced that the German Emperor has wired President Wilson "an important message."

How this was immediately connected with a suggestion of peace proposals is shown by the wording of the London dispatch, as follows:

LONDON, Sept. 9.—The Emperor of Germany has sent an important message to President Wilson, according to an announcement made by the North German Gazette of Berlin, news of which was received here today. The North German Gazette is the chief official newspaper of the German government.

The dispatch telling of the Gazette's announcement gave no details as to whether the Kaiser's message related to reported peace proposals, but the Times today published a dispatch from its Washington correspondent that is interesting in view of the news from Berlin.

Referring to President Wilson's attitude, the correspondent says: "Evidence nevertheless accumulates that the German Ambassador and other German agents are assiduously spreading reports about German readiness for peace."

The French Government talks of returning to Paris soon, as follows:

BORDEAUX, Sept. 9.—Minister of War Millerand said today:

"The success of the allied forces indicates that President Poincare and the cabinet can soon return to the capital."

Furious fighting along the entire 160-mile battle line east of Paris is indicated in the following official statement issued by the French War Office at Paris at midnight:

"The right wing of the German forces, in their movement of retreat having crossed the Petit Morin River, with a view to protecting their communication, have made violent but unsuccessful attacks against that part of our forces occupying the right bank of the Ourcq River.

"Our English allies are continuing their offensive tactics in the direction of the Marne on the heights north of Sezanne. Our troops are progressing favorably, though laboriously. On our right the situation is good before Nancy and in the Vosges. A severe engagement has been fought in the centre, with alternate advancing and falling back."

As if to confirm the tales of heavy losses by the German came an unofficial declaration that the Kaiser's generals had asked for an armistice to bury their dead and care for their wounded.

In reply the French authorities are reported to have sent this message: "We grant you that time to get out of France."

German prisoners say the invaders are short of ammunition.

A dispatch to the London Mail from Rotterdam reports that it is stated on good authority that the supplies of German arms are exhausted.

HARD FIGHTING IN GALICIA.

Meanwhile in Galicia General Ruzsky has caught up with the retreating Austrians, a quarter of whose army he destroyed at the fall of Lemberg. Petrograd admits desperate fighting, but claims the advantage is with the Russian arms.

The strategical task of the Russian army is to delay the retirement of the 400,000 Austrians until the Russian army from the North can descend upon its rear guard.

The Russian general staff has announced that no serious operations are being undertaken on the German frontier. Russian strategy of making certain that Austria has been beaten to its knees before the more serious business of invading Germany is really begun, evidently is being pursued with patience and determination.

250,000 RUSSIANS IN FRANCE.

A Rome telegram says the Kaiser has left France with the German Heggerman headquarters staff for Metz. It attributes the retreat to the concentration of 250,000 Russian troops in France. No confirmation of this report has been received. On the other hand it appears certain that German troops are being rushed out of Belgium to Germany to meet the Russian forces which are slowly but surely forcing their way toward Berlin.

The Servian army is reported to have begun the invasion of Bosnia. Bosnia is nominally Turkish, but has been occupied since 1878 by the Austrians. Whether or not the invasion by the Serbs may have any effect upon Turkey's present quietude can only be guessed.

CALL LABOR MEN TO ATTEND PEACE MEETING

C. L. U. COMMITTEE GIVES BIG SUPPORT

The executive committee of the Boston Central Labor Union, which has voted its utmost support to the great peace movement inaugurated in Boston, today prepared a formal call to trades union men of Boston to attend in a body the mass meeting in the interests of peace which will be held on the Common Sunday.

The call will be issued either tonight or tomorrow. It was voted to issue the call at a remarkable meeting of the executive committee of the C. L. U. last night. Ignatius McNulty, president of the Building Trades Council of the A. F. of L., made the motion. President William Kobs of the C. L. U. endorsed it, and Secretary G. Henry Dunderdale also supported the move warmly.

Mr. McNulty in making his motion declared that thousands of laboring men in Europe are being slaughtered in a quarrel with which they have no concern. He moved, not only that a call be issued to the 85,000 labor men in Boston to attend the meeting, but that the executive committee attend in a body and sit upon the speakers' platform.

ORGANIZED BY AMERICAN.

The meeting Sunday afternoon has been organized through invitations sent out by the Boston AMERICAN.

Mr. Hearst's papers throughout the country have invited leaders in thought, in business and in civil life to take a hand in the world peace movement.

President Kobs of the C. L. U. in supporting Mr. McNulty's motion said that 2,000,000 labor men throughout the country are for peace. Mr. Dunderdale urged every man and woman and child with the interests of labor at heart to attend the Sunday meeting.

The committee unanimously passed Mr. McNulty's motion.

This action insures a record-breaking crowd at the Boston Common meeting, Sunday afternoon. Mayor Curley will preside. Governor Walsh, unless unforeseen complications follow his fractured arm, will appear as the principal speaker of the day. There will be other speakers. The meeting will not discuss the causes of war. No blame will be cast at any one. But the speakers, accepting the war as a fact, will strive to devise means for ending the war and for making war impossible hereafter.

Besides Mayor Curley and Governor Walsh the speakers will include Rabbi M. M. Eichler, Mrs. Maud Wood Park, Bishop John W. Hamilton and Albert Bryant of the World Peace Foundation.

Among the Boston labor leaders to indorse Mr. Hearst's proposal are:

HENRY ABRAHAMS, secretary Boston Central Labor Union—Life for half the world hangs in the balance. To establish peace where now the Hell of war obtains is our manifest destiny. It is the unmistakable duty of every man to join in this great movement for peace. We must show by our presence at the Common meeting next Sunday that we are heart and soul in sympathy with its principles.

As trade unionists we will lend our full power to help bring peace and harmony where today, under the ed:ak. of Christianity, bloody war holds full away.

JOSEPH A. HUVEY, vice-president of the Massachusetts State Branch of the American Federation of Labor—No body of men in the nation today will go further to make a success of this big peace movement inaugurated by Mr. Hearst than will the trade unionist of our country.

Ours is the mission to restore peace to the world, a lasting peace that shall make the recurrence of such a monstrous war in Europe impossible.

MARTIN T. JOYCE, secretary-treasurer Massachusetts State Branch of the American Federation of Labor—Arbitration of the European war differences, with the United States as an arbitor, ought to result from the great series of peace meetings which William Randolph Hearst has inaugurated.

Organized labor in this country, for more than a decade, has found honestly conceived and honestly worked out arbitration by disinterested and impartial parties a tremendous preventive of industrial war.

That the warring nations in Europe can secure peace with honor by a broad application of the same principles, to me, is beyond question.

HARRY P. JENNINGS, international vice-president Teamsters' Union—I cheerfully subscribe to the principles of the peace movement and am positive that my action will meet with the unqualified approval of every consistent trade unionist in the country.

Civilization is on trial. Our influence may be the determining factor. To remain silent under such conditions is impossible. It is our right, it is our obvious duty to step into the breach, to insist upon the immediate establishment of universal peace.

IGNATIUS M'NULTY, international vice-president Cement Workers' Union and president Boston Building Trades Council of the American Federation of Labor—Every trade unionist in the district ought to attend the big peace meeting on Boston Common next Sunday afternoon. I not only wish to be enrolled in this great movement but also shall try to have my fellow trade unionists join, too.

Among others to favor the peace program suggested by the AMERICAN:

BISHOP JOHN W. HAMILTON of the Methodist Episcopal Church—We all want peace. Endorse this gathering on Boston Common. Give your best enthusiasm to it. It will be a great service. Every one will do their share to attend it.

The REV. R. P. ANDERSON, editor of the Christian Endeavor World—Boston's peace meeting on the Common appeals to me, and I wish it every success.

Now let us talk peace, not as a mere sentiment, but as a principle which belongs to present civilization.

SUFFRAGAN-BISHOP SAMUEL G. BABCOCK of the Episcopal diocese of Massachusetts— With every effort to establish peace, I am in hearty accord. Let us express our convictions at this meeting on Boston Common; how peace represents the highest standard around which the nations can gather. The meeting will do this much, it will voice the sentiment of the highest type of civilization and it will also show that Christianity stands for peace.

The REV. ELMER S. FORBES of the American Unitarian Association — Never before has there been such slaughter of human lives and such expenditure of treasure as is now seen in distranted Europe.

We've had war with all its horrors. Let us now at this meeting on the Common organize public opinion to express itself. Let us all unite in one great aim to make for peace and for the things which follow peace. This newspaper enterprise deserves unstinted praise.

DANIELS IN VERMONT HOPES THIS IS LAST OF THE GREAT WARS

VERGENNES, Vt., Sept. 9.—"Having quit writing history with the pen, Europe has begun again to write it with the sword. She has discarded ink, and substituted blood," said Josephus Daniels, Secretary of the Navy, at the celebration here of the victory of the American navy on Lake Champlain.

"As we in America have our sympathies aroused as never before, because of the ties of blood which bind us to the men of all warring nations, there is thanksgiving in every American heart that our country is at peace.

"Let us hope, as we stand aghast at the heavy carnage, that out of it shall come the realization that international disputes may be settled in the forum of reason rather than in the forum of artillery.

"It may be that the hope of universal reduction of armament can come only after the horrors of war. The end of slavery seemed not possible without the sacrifice of the best blood of the North and South. In some way, now unknown to us, let us trust that good will come out of the present tragedy, and that this shall be the last great war to curse mankind.

OSCAR S. STRAUS MAKES MOVE TO END EUROPEAN WAR

NEW YORK, Sept. 9.—A close friend of Oscar S. Straus said last night that the conference between Mr. Straus and Count von Bernstorff, German Ambassador, were to obtain peace through the Hague tribunal. Mr. Straus is one of the four members of the permanent Hague committee representing the United States. The other three are Judge George Gray of Wilmington, Del.; Elihu Root and John Bassett Moore.

Neither Count von Bernstorff nor Mr. Straus would discuss the subject.

When the Wall street report that German financial interests were making fruitless efforts to end the war, to save German securities, was called to the attention of Mr. Straus, he replied: "I know of no financial interests in this matter."

Count von Bernstorff dined last night with Jacob H. Schiff at the Schiff country home at Sea Bright. Mr. Schiff is closely allied with German banking interests.

"Mr. Straus is acting as a representative of the Hague Tribunal," said his friend. "I am in a position to know that steps are being taken to obtain peace, but I do not believe it is being prompted by German-American financial interests. No Americans will suffer even if German securities suffer. I believe this peace movement is the outgrowth of great popular demand as voiced by the Hearst papers."

The Wall street belief that Germany is beginning to suffer financially is based on the fact that it is issuing an almost unlimited amount of paper money, although her commerce is completely crippled. The Wall Street Journal states that German notes in circulation are said to total $946,000,000, an increase since July 31 of $405,440,000.

Secretary of State Bryan and Sir Cecil Spring-Rice, the British Ambassador, denied that Mr. Straus intimated the Kaiser would look favorably on a renewal of President Wilson's offer to mediate between the warring powers. Mr. Straus called at the State Department and the British Embassy Sunday, the same day he conferred with the German Ambassador. The British Ambassador added that Mr. Straus talked peace.

NAMES OF PEACE ADVOCATES FLOW INTO AMERICAN OFFICE

LEADING RABBIS AND JEWISH LAYMEN OF BOSTON FOR PEACE

The supreme test made by the Boston AMERICAN and all the other Hearst newspapers in the United States, urging foreign governments and leaders of thought in this country to join in an international peace movement, has met with the approval and the sympathetic response of some of the leading rabbis and Jewish laymen of Greater Boston.

The large majority of the Jewish people are involved in the conflict. About 1,000,000 Jewish soldiers are fighting in the ranks of the opposing armies, brother against brother.

The rabbis and congregations affiliated with the Union of Orthodox Jewish Congregations of America have been requested to offer up the following prayer at all appropriate services during the continuance of the war. The prayer was composed by the president, the Rev. Bernard Drachman, and is:

O Lord God of mercy and compassion. Unto Thee we lift our eyes, while our hearts are torn with grief and sorrow. We beseech Thee, look down from Thy holy habitation, from high heaven. How dread and fearful the sight! Myriads of Thy children, created in Thy image, are contending on fields of battle, are filling with savage hate. In furious rage they strike and destroy one another with every implement of destruction. Rivers of blood deluge the face of Thy earth.

We pray Thee, O Lord, have pity on the wretched children of men; remove evil pride and the spirit of tyranny from the hearts of their sovereigns and princes into whose hands their lot is entrusted; teach the rulers understanding that they may recognize that not the sword shall control the affairs of state, but only justice and righteousness. King over all, we pray Thee, in Thy great mercy, make an end of the slaughter and massacre, and vouch safe unto mankind the happy time foretold by Thy prophets, saying: "No nation shall lift the sword against another nation and they shall not any longer learn war."

May the eyes of the children of men be opened that they may see that they are all brethren, children of one Father; may they dwell on earth in love and brotherliness, in peace and harmony; may they serve Thee with a sincere heart, and may the Redeemer come to Zion. Amen.

MILITARY WRITERS THINK AUSTRIA MAY TRY TO MAKE PEACE

ROME, Sept. 9.—Austrian opinion is inclined to the view that the chances of victory for the Triple Entente powers have been improved by recent events.

Military writers express the belief that Austria may try to make peace for herself, leaving Germany isolated. Great importance is attached to the declaration of the entente powers not to make peace separately.

BLACKHEADS GO QUICK BY THIS SIMPLE METHOD

Blackheads—big ones of little ones—soft ones or hard ones—on any part of the body, go quick by a simple method that just dissolves them. Do so this pet about two ounces of powdered nerosin from your druggist—sprinkle a little on a hot, wet sponge—rub over the blackheads briskly for a few moments and wash off. You'll wonder where the blackheads have gone. The powdered nerosin and the hot water have just dissolved them. Pinching and squeezing blackheads only open the pores of the skin and leave them open and unsightly—and unless the blackheads are big and soft they will not come out, while the simple application of nerosin and water dissolves them right out, leaving the skin soft and the pores in their natural condition. You can get powdered nerosin at any drug store and if you are troubled with these unsightly blemishes you should certainly try this simple method.

1,580 PASSENGERS ARRIVE ON LACONIA

Court and Mrs. Grant came on the Laconia.

Arthur S. Johnson, president of the Boston Y. M. C. A., and Mrs. Johnson were delayed in Switzerland several days.

Among the most thrilling war tales related among the passengers of the Laconia was that told by A. V. C. Honeyman, one of eighteen tourists from Plainfield, N. J. He and his party were up in Alsace when the war broke. They were coming from Switzerland, and were stopped by the Austrian officials, who, Honeyman declared, "Mr. Honeyman, please tell how the Austrians treat their guests."

"It was midnight on our train, July 31. The train was stopped and we were all dumped out in the Kehl, Germany, side of the bridge over the Austro-Hungarian frontier. There was a solid footing there, about 4 o'clock in the morning. There were soldiers, men and women, but none for the moment interested us. The commissioners in charge could get no train.

BRIDGE SPIKED.

"Finally we hired a farmer's horse and cart, piled our baggage on it, and, all walking along on foot, started for the German frontier. We came to a river. There was a bridge over it. But the bridge had been covered with new planking, with short, sharp stickers through the planking, points up. This was to prevent cavalry from crossing the bridge.

"We dodged around the horse and let him swim the river. We pulled the cart across the bridge, managing to steer the wheels clear of the planking. We had to look out where we stepped, too. We got across, harnessed the horse up again and went along. Finally we got to Breslau and there found transportation by train to Bremen."

Miss Amy Lowell, poet and sister of President Lowell of Harvard, with Miss Harold Russell of Salt Lake City and maid and chauffeur, were at an English home when war came. Miss Lowell and Mrs. Russell assisted in transportation committees of the American Relief Association, and have high praise for that work. The party suffered no hardships.

Judge Frederick Lawton of the Supreme Court and Mrs. Lawton, who were at Aix-les-Bains, when French mobilization shut off all means of transportation, were subjected to many delays in getting out of the country.

BOUND TO BOSTON GIRLS.

The Misses Katherine and Carolyn More, sisters, of Boston, were traveling through Germany when caught by the mobilization of troops. They were held in a little German village, the name of which they do not know, for several days. Most of their baggage is still there.

"We were forced out of our train in the middle of the night," said one of the sisters today, upon landing at the Custom dock, "and our train was taken for military purposes.

"Women have no rights in Germany that the soldier is bound to respect. We were not actually insulted, but were badly treated with a brusqueness and rudeness that American girls are not used to. The consul helped us get to Rotterdam and from there we made our way to Liverpool and home."

Edgar C. Wyzanski, a member of Harvard's Sinking Fund Commission, returned on the Laconia and related his experiences. He was accompanied by his wife and son Arthur and was in Switzerland. He said:

"My experiences were weird and many. I was kissed and hugged by a burly army lieutenant, had to explain to him who and what William Jennings Bryan was and was also arrested when I asked where I could buy some chocolate.

"We were stopped on the frontier to permit the passage of troop trains. I asked if it was possible to purchase some chocolate. As we were all hungry and had nothing to eat for some time.

"A lieutenant of the forces stepped to the front and said: 'Mr. Wyzanski, about this chocolate business,' and he placed the whole party under arrest. We found out later that it was because one of the party carried a camera that was made in Germany."

BLUNT KNOW-IT-BRYAN.

"We were all searched, even the women and children. I showed my passport which was signed by the American Secretary of State. I showed it to the officer. He asked, 'Who is this Bryan?' When I explained the officer put his arms about my shoulders and kissed me, right on both cheeks. He called me brother and we were permitted to go."

Dr. E. F. Timmins and his bride, who was Miss Mary O'Meara, niece of Police Commissioner O'Meara of Boston, who were also passengers, told an interesting tale. They were in Italy, Switzerland and France. They said:

"We were the last to get into Switzerland from Italy at the outbreak of the war. We drove through the Simplon Pass and when we got into Switzerland our horses were taken from us. They were attached to a gun carriage and that was the last that we saw of our horses.

"We went to Geneva, got most of our baggage, but didn't have a single cent for several days. We had travelers' checks for hundreds of dollars, but couldn't cash them. We got food in the hotels. Later on we exchanged some of our checks at exorbitant rates."

Mrs. Timmins was not impressed with the appearance of Paris on her arrival there.

"Paris was gloomy. The shops were closed. All the hotel male help had gone to the front and their work was done by women. No taxicabs could be procured. The army had taken them all. We had to walk all the time. It was our intention to go to London, but a friend advised us to make for America and we did."

The Misses Carolyn and Katherine More (at top) and below (left to right) Mrs. Edward F. Timmins and Miss Grace Ackerman, four Boston women, who returned from war zone today on the Laconia.

EX-PROMOTER OF ASSOCIATED TRUST SCORED

Frank F. Blanchard of Plympton, former trustee and promoter of the Associated Trust, was characterized today by John Noble, receiver, in his report filed at the United States District Court, as "lavish, wasteful and extravagant" in his management of the trust.

The report, the first to be filed since the appointment of the receiver, goes into minute detail about the different interests and properties of the trust. "Blanchard," the report says, borrowed money at exorbitant rates of interest, in some instances at 12 per cent. a year. The Blanchard management of the trust was lavish, wasteful and extravagant."

Twelve hundred people who subscribed to the "certificates of beneficial interests," had paid in to Blanchard, as trustee, $962,890. The receiver reported that he was obliged to engage expert accountants on account "of the neglect of Blanchard to keep proper records of his various transactions, and his omission to keep any record of accounts payable."

In regard to the Hotel Lenox the receiver reported that, although the initiate expenditure by the trust was excessive yet the hotel is not going backward in spite of the confusion caused by the excavations for the Boylston street subway. In regard to the apartment house properties the trust was wasteful, the receiver found, while under Blanchard, in hiring too many at too high wages. "This waste," Mr. Noble reports, "was to a great extent corrected by the three trustees who succeeded Blanchard. They did a great deal to economize."

GIRL, 18, KILLS SELF ON EVE OF WEDDING

A most pitiful tragedy took place today in East Boston when Francesca Occhipinte, eighteen years old, shot herself through the right temple with a 38-caliber revolver at her home at No. 2 Murray court. She died at the East Boston Relief Hospital shortly afterward.

She was the daughter of Carlo Occhipinte. But two weeks ago her engagement to Beppo Salvo of No. 4 Murray court was announced. The couple were waiting only until the girl's sisters birth record and the like had arrived from Italy, to get married. Salvo had called on her this morning. A mere trivial disagreement may have taken place which the girl brooded over.

The revolver, a huge affair which the father had bought but a short time ago, was found at the girl's side. She had collapsed against the sewing machine, where she had been at work. On the machine were laid neatly in a row the trinkets and jewelry she had been wearing, some of them engagement presents from Salvo.

Ten Above Zero at Mt. Washington

BRETTON WOODS, N. H., Sept. 9. Stormswept for two days, the Presidential Range of the White Mountains presents an unusual sight today, as the ravines and mountain passes are ice-covered. The temperature descended to 10 degrees above zero.

Frank Barr, Former B. & M. Manager, Dies

Frank Barr, former general manager of the Boston & Maine, is dead at his home in Winchester. He was sixty-two. In 1896 he was called to Boston and made assistant general manager of the entire Boston & Maine system. He retired in 1912 owing to poor health.

FRANCESCA OCCHIPINTE of East Boston, who was soon to be married and who killed herself today shortly after a meeting with her fiance.

Boys, 14, Enlist in the German Army

LONDON, Sept. 9.—That mere boys are being allowed to enlist in the German army is indicated by the following from the Berliner Tageblatt:

"Younger still that the Koenigsberg recruit, Scheyer, fourteen years eleven months, who enrolled as a volunteer in the Koenigsberg reserve battalion, is the sophomore Billert, who until now belonged to the third company of the main military academy. This youthful recruit is fourteen years nine months."

N. H. MAKES BIG CHANGE IN TRAIN RUNS

The sweeping changes the New Haven Railroad will make in its train schedules, to go into effect September 27, will not affect the Boston-New York runs. The move is an effort to reduce operating expenses. Where through and local trains are now provided at about the same time, the local trains in many cases will be cut off and through trains will make local stops. Practically all of the suburban stations on the system will be affected by the change.

Only a few alterations have been made in the longer hauls. Beyond Providence no changes have been announced from the local offices. Three trains between Boston and Providence will be discontinued. The changes include:

Train No. 3009 will leave Boston at 6:14 a. m., instead of 6:02 a. m., running to Readville, and is discontinued Readville to Mansfield. Train No. 5 will make the stops at Canton Junction, Sharon, Sharon Heights and East Foxboro.

Train now leaving Providence at 8:02 a. m. will leave at 8 a. m., stopping at Pawtucket, Attleboro, Mansfield and arrive Boston 9:20 a. m., and present No. 602, leaving Providence at 8:05 p. m. will be discontinued. No. 3064 will stop at Sharon at 9:49 a. m. and No. 3054 will stop at Canton Junction at 9:02 a. m.

Train leaving Providence at 4 p. m. will stop at all Pawtucket, Attleboro and Mansfield, and train now leaving Providence at 4:10 p. m. will be discontinued between Providence and Mansfield. No. 3194 will stop at West Mansfield at 5:52 p. m.

Sunday train No. 692 leaving Boston for Providence at 6:39 a. m. will be discontinued.

The "Lassoon" will only run until October 24 and will be put on about May 1.

HANG GERMAN SPY UNDER WINDOW OF BOSTON TEACHERS' ROOM

Tales of hardships as refugees in Germany, Switzerland and France were told by Miss Helen E. Parker, a teacher at the Boston Continuation School, and Miss Mildred Ivy when they reached Boston today on the Allan liner Numedian.

Miss Parker and Miss Ivy were caught at Lucerne when the news of the war roused Europe.

"For two weeks we waited and begged for means of getting away in vain," said Miss Ivy. "Finally we reached Geneva. The indignant Swiss travelers ivy there piled to the station eave.

"We spent a night sleeping upon our baggage and at 8:30 o'clock in the morning were thankful to get a train to Bellegrade, France. Here another day and night passed before we got out. Then by lucky chance, along came a troop train bearing Lyon French soldiers, singing and cheering, bound to the front.

"No travelers were supposed to ride on this train, but thinking that it was bound for Paris we climbed in one of the compartments with several troopers and managed to get to Lyons. There we were held up for two days and during that time were very hard pressed for food. The soldiers threw their rations from the trains and we were glad to get. Cheese and French bread were all the other food we could obtain.

"During the night while we were asleep in a room not far from the station, Miss Parker was awakened by wild shouts outside. She awakened me and though we could not make out exactly what was going on we heard enough to fill us with horror and fear.

"The net morning we learned that a spy had been hanged right under the window where we slept.

"We finally reached Bologne and from there got to London and Glasgow."

Among the other Boston passengers on board were James Gilbert, A. McAusland, Miss D. T. Donohue of No. 1 Bowdoin street, Mrs. George Gilbert and J. J. Kelly. Father C. McLaughlin, a Catholic priest from the north of Ireland, en route to Alaska, was also a passenger. The priest told of sufferings in the north of Ireland due to the rise of prices caused by the war.

The steamer brought a total of 250 passengers, including 142 first cabin and 108 steerage.

LIST OF FRUIT LINERS TO SAIL UNDER U. S. FLAG

The United Fruit Company today gave out a complete list of the company's twenty-five steamers which will be registered to fly the American flag. They are as follows:

Steamships.	Gross tons.
Orteguna	2,363
Sarnia	3,502
Saramillo	3,299
Turrialba	3,299
Zacapa	3,299
Quirigua	3,192
Bluefields	3,192
Cartago	4,907
Limon	4,909
Bocas	4,934
Metapan	4,958
Pastores	4,961
Tela	4,962
Esperanza	5,010
Guatemala	5,010
Heredia	5,011
Managua	5,011
Comayagua	5,013
Chiriqui	5,015
Veragua	5,015
Antigua	7,345
Cristobal	7,345
Total	116,610

The Thives sails from Boston tomorrow and will fly the American flag.

That the fruit company will be followed closely by other corporations may be taken for granted. There are about 500,000 tons of American-owned ocean-going steamers under foreign flags. This United Fruit registration, therefore, amounts to the transfer of nearly fourteen per cent. of this total to the American flag.

Standard oil, with thirty-six steamers of 172,000 tons flying the German flag, will put at least a portion of these steamers under the flag of the United States.

Maine Mills Boom With Big Orders as Result of the War

The plush mills at Sanford, Me., report a big boom in their business. The mills are running on full time. A number of orders originally given to Belgian factories have been transferred to the Maine concern as a result of the war, and the company looks for continued prosperity in the American plush industry.

Mrs. Moulton's Jewels Found by Farmer

PORTLAND, Me., Sept. 9. — C. B. Clark, a farmer of North Bridgton, Me., has notified Mrs Byron P. Moulton of Ardmore, Pa., that he had found beside the road the bag containing $15,000 worth of jewels which she lost from her automobile while motoring from Bretton Woods, N. H., to Poland Springs, Me. Mr. Clark will receive the $250 reward offered.

Broken Wire Kills Two.

WISCASSET, Me., Sept. 9.—Richard Moore and Alvah Huff of Edgecomb were electrocuted by a broken electric wire while they were blasting on Davis island.

HUB SCHOOLS ARE OPENED TO 107,000 PUPILS

School opened today in most of the cities and towns of Greater Boston, and in Boston alone 107,000 children appeared at the various buildings for admittance to the classes. It is expected this number will climb to 110,000 within the week. With the assistance of temporary structures here and there, all were accommodated.

Thirteen teachers are still marooned in Europe but are expected to return by October 1.

The principals of schools and districts today were urged, by a special circular issued by Superintendent Dyer, to see that neutrality is strictly observed in any discussion of the war in the schools. Mr. Dyer's instructions read in part:

"The greatest tragedy in the history of the world is now being enacted. Nearly all of the nations of ancient reaching back into the nations involved, and it is but natural that all should be deeply moved. Nevertheless all excitement resulting from the events of the war should be kept out of the school room.

VALUE OF WAR STUDY.

"If our pupils are led to look with horror and terror at the human suffering, and to recognize that each side is struggling with equal certainty that it is in the right, the interest of the children may not be hurtful; but if they take sides in a partisan spirit, or learn to look upon scenes of carnage as they would upon a spectacular game, it will be injurious to their character.

"The inaccuracy of reports and the horror of the whole dreadful war lead me to believe that the study in the classroom of current events is of questionable value at the present time."

Railroad Men Meet Wilson

URGE RATE BOOST

By B. C. FORBES.

Today President Wilson is to receive a deputation of representative railroad presidents who will lay before him a disconcerting array of facts and prospects.

* * *

President Wilson doubtless will be told:

THAT THE RAILROADS NEED—IMPERATIVELY—AN INCREASE IN RATES.

* * *

1. Present conditions, if allowed to continue, will bring widespread insolvency.

2. Every important European government will enter the market for capital in the near future and pay whatever exorbitant price may be found necessary to attract investors.

3. Unless the credit of America's railroads be above suspicion, it will be absolutely impossible for them to compete successfully for the savings of the public and the deposits of institutions and estates.

4. Proper credit and stability cannot be maintained unless an increase in income is sanctioned—and—not a secondary moment—the general attitude of the administration and the people toward the railroads is such as to inspire confidence among investors rather than repel them.

5. The present prospect of reorganizing the many railroads, having some $500,000,000 securities, already in bankruptcy is virtually hopeless.

6. The only considerable railroad financing undertaken since the European upheaval, to wit, the extension of several millions of New York Central short-term notes, has involved an increase in the total cost to the road of 40 per cent., the rate having been raised from 5 per cent. to 7 per cent.

7. Maturing obligations alone, irrespective of one dollar of new capital, will call for not less than half a billion dollars between now and the end of next year.

8. The railroad bring now so thoroughly in the thumb of the Interstate Commerce Commission, any increase in rates granted now could, if circumstances changed for the better, be withdrawn at any later date the commission might see fit to name.

9. If confidence in American railroad bonds could be firmly established at this time, European investors and institutions, realizing the havoc wrought among their own investments, would turn to the United States as the safest country on the face of the earth.

10. By giving the railroads a push along the highway to prosperity, the whole country would be benefited a hundred fold.

* * *

That, please note, is the railroad view.

* * *

With much, almost all, of it I personally agree.

* * *

I for one cannot at this moment see how the general railroad position in America can be made sound on the present rate basis—having in mind, of course, the economic evolution, or revolution, now under way throughout the world.

* * *

There is one phase of the situation, however, that I would like to bring to the serious notice of our railroad managers. It is this:

If they succeed in their movement to have rates marked up quite materially, what effect will it have upon the growing demand for government ownership of railroads?

Will the public rise up in protest and insist that the present plight of many railroads has been brought on by "financiering" of questionable character, by barefaced looting in numbers of notorious cases, by gross mismanagement in others and in still others by running roads mainly as pawns in the Wall Street game?

* * *

America's railroads, to my mind, are about to enter an extremely critical passage in their history. If they refrain from petitioning for an addition to their income many of them are in danger of becoming insolvent. If they levy a substantially heavier burden upon the consuming public they run the risk of arousing an insistent clamor for government ownership, a contingency that most railroad managers would prefer to avoid.

* * *

However, something must be done if grave financial trouble is to be averted.

* * *

And let the public disabuse itself of any idea that the railroads can be "swatted" without injury to the nation.

* * *

The railroads are not parasites. They are not aliens. They are not things apart from the common interest. They are an integral and infinitely important part of our whole social financial and industrial life. The term "railroads" does not imply a number of capitalistic entities, but embraces the solvency and welfare of patients, savings banks, insurance companies, hospitals, trustee funds, national and State banks, trust companies and perhaps four million industrial bondholders and stockholders, including a very large percentage of women and children. All this in addition to some two million employes whose wellbeing is interwoven with that of their employes.

* * *

It is lamentable that at a time like the present, when householders are at their wits' end as to how to meet mounting expenses, the railroads should come along and ask us all to increase our tribute to them. But a policy of "do nothing" is not tenable.

To write thus is a thankless task, I well realize. But shutting one's eyes never yet overcame a difficulty.

The way to meet trouble is to face it, as President Vail of the American Telephone Company has aptly remarked.

Arizona Governor Is Renominated

PHOENIX, Ariz., Sept. 9.—Returns from yesterday's State-wide primaries showed that Governor Hunt had been renominated on the Democratic ticket and that Senator Marcus A. Smith had a substantial lead over Reese Long, his Democratic opponent. There were no contests on the Republican and Progressive tickets.

Big Woman's Vote in Illinois Primaries

CHICAGO, Sept. 9.—The largest vote ever cast in the history of the State was predicted when balloting opened at today's primaries for the nomination of State and county and U. S. Senator, Congress and State officials. There are 4,400 candidates for 223 offices throughout the State. Chief Clerk William H. Stuart of the local election board said the vote would run to 445,000, of which the women cast 145,000.

Death Mystery at Union Wharf Probed

The police are investigating the death of a man whose body was found on Union Wharf, leaning up against a building, with a pool of blood on the ground about eight feet away, and another pool on the tracks of the railroad, four feet further away.

MISS POLLY LESEUR of Hyde Park, who, tonight, becomes the bride of childhood friend, Dr. Percy W. Carr.

HYDE PARK GIRL TO WED FRIEND OF CHILDHOOD

The marriage this evening of Miss Polly Leseur to Dr. Percy W. Carr in Hyde Park is really a romance of childhood. They were playmates as children.

The wedding will take place at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Leseur of No. 231 Fairmount avenue, where Miss Leseur was born and has lived. The officiating clergyman will be the Rev. Perley B. Davis of West Roxbury, pastor emeritus of the Hyde Park Congregational Church, who married the bride's parents thirty-one years ago in the same house.

Miss Leseur is the treasurer of the Thought Club, is prominent in the Current Events Club and has been quite successful in amateur theatricals. Dr. Carr is a prominent physician of Hyde Park and a graduate of the class of '04, Harvard College.

Miss Ruth Leseur, a sister, will be maid of honor, and Miss Mary King of Hyde Park, a cousin, will be ringbearer. Dr. Leonard Baker of the State Farm Hospital, Bridgewater, will be best man. The ushers will be Charles B. Leseur, a brother; Dr. Charles E. Bryan and John Bowman, all of Hyde Park.

A reception will be held from 8 to 10 o'clock. Dr. and Mrs. Carr will reside at No. 219 Fairmount avenue, Hyde Park.

Cash Going to Win War, George Says

LONDON, Sept. 9.—"We want every penny we can raise to help fight the enemy," says David Lloyd George, Chancellor of the Exchequer. "We must come out triumphant in this struggle, and as finance is going to play a very important part in it we must husband our resources."

MOTOR NOTES

By J. C. KERRIGAN.

The latest member of the Red Sox team to join the ranks of the motorists is "Dutch" Leonard, who has made such an enviable pitching record this season. Leonard is now the proud possessor of a Stutz Bearcat and finds it very convenient for driving to and from the ball grounds.

Manager Carrigan, Harry Hooper and Larry Gardner are also owners of Stutz cars and on pleasant evenings when the team is playing at home much of the time is spent driving along the fine roads adjacent to Boston.

A party of Cadillac sub-dealers and agents from Boston and Manchester left yesterday for a visit to the factory in Detroit, as the guests of Manager Albion L. Danforth of the local branch. The party will inspect the new model of the company which is to be placed on the market about the twenty-fifth of the month.

It is reported that eight police officers are stationed between Arlington Centre and Arlington Heights, on Massachusetts avenue, to prosecute automobilists who fail to slow down to eight miles per hour and blow their horns at intersecting streets.

"Follow Up" as it may be applied to the automobile tire business is demonstrated by a firm of dealers in a southern town. This company sends a scout about town to note when any of the Ajax tires, which it handles, are showing signs of being worn so that a new casing is likely soon to be necessary. From his reports solicitation of business follows by telephone, call and letter. The campaign is proving successful, many casings having been sold by these dealers to motorists thus advised of the condition of their tires.

FLOUR DROPS 15 TO 25 CENTS IN THE MARKETS

Flour prices were reduced fifteen to twenty-five cents a barrel today in Boston markets. Sugar, however, is likely to take another jump before the day is over.

Fish prices are expected to drop today. With the beach resorts practically closed for the season now, fishermen will be sending more fish into Boston markets.

National and provincial continue to advance. The former is selling at $1.65 a barrel higher than was asked before the war, and the latter is quoted at $1.15 or $1.20 higher.

Potatoes have dropped again. They are selling at 10 cents less per two-bushel bag than on Saturday, or at a rate of 60 cents a bushel.

The Chamber of Commerce today sets out some interesting figures on the amount of foodstuffs in storage. It is announced that in forty-six associated warehouses in the United States, on September 1, there were 52,570,000 pounds of butter stored, as against 75,567,000 pounds on the same date in 1913.

There were over 160,000 more cases of eggs in storage in these forty-six warehouses on September 1 than on the same date in 1913. The egg storage figures are 3,094,000 cases on the first of September, 1914, and 2,929,800 on September 1, 1913.

The stock of flour in Boston on September 1 was 63,398 barrels, against 40,460 a year ago, and 47,880 on August 1 of this year.

On September 5 there were 301,015 packages of butter, 51 pounds to the package, on hand in Boston, as against 287,191 packages on the week before, an increase of 321 packages. On the corresponding dates a year ago there were 331,334 and 321,003 packages respectively.

On September 5 there were 396,194 cases of eggs, 30 dozen to a case, in Boston, against 399,589 cases the previous week, a decrease of 3,395 cases.

Curley Pushes New Plans for Street Lighting Contract

Mayor Curley and Corporation Counsel Sullivan have submitted to the City Council in executive session a tentative form of street lighting contract under which the Edison Illuminating Company is willing to grant the city a price of $87.53 a light, with compulsory arbitration by the Gas and Electric Light Commission provided that later to determine whether or not the price shall be made still lower.

The tentative contract calls for a ten-year term, with provision for further extension by a board of three. One of the members of this board shall be selected by the city and one by the company. These two shall select the third member.

The Council took the matter under advisement.

HOUSE PLEASES AGAIN IN 'ROAD TO HAPPINESS'

By FREDERICK JOHNS.

If you can call to find "The Road to Happiness" as being pointed out by Willie Howe at the new Willow Tree Lane every night with the usual success.

Hodge, Limited, "The Man From Home," has come back to us in a rural drama. It is an old-fashioned play with all the familiar ingredients, the aged father, who shouts "Out of my house!" the pathetic stepdaughter who says, "I am innocent," and the bashful couple who have been courting for a generation.

But, it also contains William Hodge, who was not provided for by the regular run of rural dramas, and it is this lean and angular interpolation which makes the pieces different and more amusing than the rest.

Hodge has a part which fits him like a kid glove. He has preserved the Hoosier drawl so familiar to those who know him in "The Man From Home," but he has created a striking and original character as Jim Whitman, the country boy without education or advantages, who studies law by lamplight, and has odd jobs work at the carpenter's bench is done. Hodge is a sort of deus ex machina in this play. He is the cause of all the unfortunates and stage manager a happy ending for everybody.

The people like Hodge and they like his play. They laugh and cry and sympathize and enjoy themselves. They will probably name it "The Road to Happiness" or sold plankes, for it is full of what is termed in newspaper circles the "heart stuff." Lawrence Whitman, the author, will probably never be rated with Sardou, Pinero or Augustus Thomas on what he has accomplished in this play, but he will draw down plenty of royalties.

Scott Cooper, who plays the inhuman father, who persecutes his step-daughter and his wife, and tries to drive Jim Whitman, who admires them, out of town, does a very creditable job of character work. Gertrude Hitz is a dainty and charming ingenue. Hazel Sexton is sweet and pretty as Eva. Jim's sweetheart, Joseph Rieder is a pleasant juvenile. Taylor Carroll as a poor tool of a minister was capital. Marie Haynes is an excellent character actress and Ida Vernon, one of the oldest actresses on the stage, was winning, indeed, as Jim's mother. The remainder of the long cast was perfectly satisfactory.

Cardinal O'Connell Due Back in 10 Days

ROME, Sept. 9.—Cardinal O'Connell will leave here today with Cardinal Gibbons and sail on the Canopic from Naples. Cardinal O'Connell is expected to reach the United States in ten days.

Proposed to by phonograph is the experience of Clara Millner, the clever dancer in "High Jinks," and it has all happened in Boston, too. A few days ago the pretty little actress went into a phonograph store on Tremont street and purchased a gramophone. While she was in the establishment, she noticed a young man trying to flirt with her.

Miss Millner does not flirt. She wants this understood. She fan into the youth apparently by accident hair a dozen times in the next few days. Yesterday she found a package of phonograph records addressed to her at the Shubert and as soon as she got home she put the first one upon the machine.

What was it but a declaration of love from the young man who had seen her in the phonograph store. Each record was more passionate than the other, and the last contained a proposal of marriage. He said he was wealthy and could make her very happy. When she was asked if she intended to become the phonograph's bride she said:

"I don't know. Let me get a look at him. He certainly sounds nice."

CLARA MILLNER, of "High Jinks" fame, to whom an ardent admirer made a phonographic proposal of marriage.

WALSH'S REST WON'T AFFECT CAMPAIGN PLAN

Governor Walsh had a very good night, slept about six hours, and it was said today by Dr. Charles Goodrider, is in every respect getting along quite as well as could be expected. It may, however, be ten days before His Excellency is out and about again.

The Governor's broken arm will not have any effect on his campaign for re-election, as he did not intend to begin active work on it until October 1, it was said today by his secretary, Herbert Inloy.

"He probably will probably have to remain in the hospital for a week or ten days," said Secretary Connelly. "He is doing very nicely, I understood that his condition does not warrant any alarm. The absence of official business has prevented the Governor from taking any vacation this year and after he leaves the hospital he will probably go away for a week or two and prepare his campaign material."

Secretary Connelly said that under a Supreme Court decision it is necessary for State documents to be signed by a rubber stamp with the Governor's name on it.

Leaves Estate of $10,000 to Chum

NEW HAVEN, Sept. 9.—A story of a friendship, which dated back to a hot Summer's day eight years ago, when Harvey Munson Alling, a watchman at Fitch's factory, invited Julius A. Norman, a youngster playing nearby, to eat lunch with him in the shade of a board fence, was told in the Probate Court when the will of Alling was filed, bequeathing his entire estate, amounting to $10,000, to the boy, who is now twenty-one years old. It appears that after eating the first lunch the two dined together every day for seven and one-half years up to the fatal illness of the watchman.

Tramp Saves His Life and Then Robs Him

STORM KING, N. Y., Sept. 9.—After saving the life of Andrew Trufant, who tipped out of a canoe and nearly drowned in the Hudson River, a stranger stole his watch and bank roll for his trouble and is at large today with them.

The wash of a steamer upset the canoe and Trufant, who could not swim, shouted for help as he grabbed the overturned keel. A tramp walking along the River road noticed the affair, saw him go over and, diving into the water, swam out and brought him to shore.

R. R. HEADS IN CONFERENCE ASK AID OF WILSON

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9.—The most important business conference ever held at the White House took place today when the heads of seven of the great railroads of the country urged President Wilson's assistance in refinancing securities of the roads, amounting to many millions of dollars.

The railroad executives were Frank Trumbull, chairman Chesapeake & Ohio and Missouri, Kansas & Texas; Samuel Rea, president Pennsylvania; Daniel Willard, president Baltimore & Ohio; Fairfax Harrison, president Southern Railway; E. P. Ripley, president Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe, and Hale Holden, president Chicago, Burlington & Quincy. The railroad chiefs pointed out to the President the difficulties which the carriers face as the result of the financial conditions created by the war.

Most important of these problems they outlined, was the refinancing of obligations that have matured or are about to mature. They showed the President a list of railroad securities for the present year that remain to be met and the equipment bonds, notes and other paper that must be paid for 1916, totalling several hundred million dollars.

The President was asked to favor an amendment to the Interstate Commerce act, which would give the Interstate Commerce Commission power to consider the financial conditions in passing on increased rate applications instead of confining itself to the specific facts involved in the case at bar. It is believed in official circles that the conference may pave the way for a reopening of the 5 per cent. advance rate case and other applications for increased revenues.

Curley Wants the Schools Neutral

Strict neutrality among school children is urged by Mayor Curley in a letter to Chairman George E. Brock of the school committee, "in strict compliance with the recommendation of President Woodrow Wilson. I would undoubtedly relieve the school department from embarrassments which might result from the pursuance of any course other than a strictly neutral one," says the Mayor.

MACK AND MOHR DRAW, LUSTIG DEFEATS BROOKS AND FARREN BESTS PALMER

MOHR AND MACK IN DRAW BOUT AT ATLAS A. A.

By JACK CONWAY.

FRANKIE MACK and Walter Mohr have yet to settle which is the better boxer. These two skilful lightweights met at the Atlas A. A. last night and the contest was declared a draw by Referee Flaherty after ten rugged rounds of fighting.

The writer thought that Mack had a slight shade on the Brooklyn youth, but the advantage in his favor was not a very great one, and the verdict of the referee was well received by the large crowd of fistic fans who witnessed the tussle.

The rival ring men fought at a merry clip throughout the encounter. Both boys were out to win by a decisive margin and did some sweet fighting in the very first session.

Mack gave a fine account of himself. The Beachmont boxer was in much better condition than when he was held to a draw with Charley Beyers at the Arena several weeks ago. He moved in and out with precision and grace and his speed enabled him to score many solid smashes, while he was able to get out of the way of a large number of Mohr's well meant punches.

MACK THE FASTER BOXER.

Frankie, however, did not rely entirely upon his speed and skill. He proved that he is also a fine young fighter and was always willing to exchange punches with his opponent.

Mohr fought his usual slashing battle. He was not quite as fast as Mack, but starred at infighting. He would rest his head on the Beachmont favorite's left shoulder and would let drives with deadly left and right hand blows to the body.

Mohr hurt his right hand in the eighth stanza and this greatly handicapped him in the closing rounds, and he was forced to do most of his fighting with one hand.

JOHNNY YOUNG" LUSTIG gave the "fans" a swell exhibition of fighting in his contest with Terry Brooks. We now know why he was able to hold Baldwin to a draw at Manchester, N. H. Lustig defeated Brooks, and in doing so fought like a champion. He reminds us of Johnny Dundee, and is always active while in the ring.

Lustig's speed and knowledge of the fine points of the game enabled him to conquer Brooks. He fought well with both hands while he evaded the many leather and terrific wallops. Unlike the average young fighter, Lustig does not depend entirely upon his footwork to get out of the way of a punch.

He ducks his head and moves his body like a veteran performer, and dodges many blows without taking a step at all. It was such tactics as these which enabled Abe Attell, Jimmy Walsh and a host of other former ring stars to make such fine records.

BROOKS was beaten, but he managed to make things interesting for Lustig. He did not land many blows in the early part of the whirl, but came to the front with a rush in the closing rounds of the skirmish when Lustig tired. Brooks was then able to send a large number of punches to their mark.

Terry also had the distinction of scoring the only knockout of the bout. He caught Lustig on the point of the jaw with a hard right-hand blow in the fourth chapter, and the New Yorker dropped to the mat, but was on his feet in a second fighting like a demon.

THE bout between Joe Chick of Gloucester and Johnny "Kid" Alberts, the New Jersey lightweight, furnished another whirlwind bout. It was declared a draw by Referee Flaherty at the end of the tenth round, but the writer believes that Chick was entitled to the verdict.

Both boxers were in grand condition and began to fight for all they were worth in the very first round. The opening session was fairly even, as were the next two rounds. If there was any advantage either way it was in Alberts' favor. Chick started at a fast pace in the fourth stanza and the "fans" witnessed plenty of close to head fighting.

Chick displayed all of his old dash and vim in the fourth frame and knocked Alberts thoroughly dizzy with a series of wicked smashes. He had a big lead in this stanza and also forged to the front in the following rounds.

THE Gloucester boy grabbed off the high honors in the sixth, seventh, eighth and nine rounds. He secured a clean knockdown in the sixth frame, while Alberts fell to the mat in the eighth session after being hit a light blow on the jaw. It looked as though he fell more from exhaustion than anything else.

Alberts got a draw by "dashing" in the tenth frame. He fought for all he was worth in this round and scored repeatedly with his right hand blows while Chick was unable to do much effective work in this chapter.

JOE FARREN, the rugged East Boston welterweight, who has been winning with regularity of late, added another to his list of victories when he bested Jack Palmer of New York in ten rounds.

Palmer came to Boston touted as a star, but he was completely outclassed by Lou Kelley's protege, who riddled him with left and right hand punches. Joe now says that he is open to meet any boxer in New England who has an idea that he is the local welterweight champion.

SAM LANGFORD and Battling Jim Johnson have been matched to exchange blows in the feature bout of twelve rounds at the Atlas Club next Tuesday night.

Boxing Results.

At New York—Harry Stone, making his first appearance in a local ring since returning from England and Australia, outpointed Joe Lynch, Phil Bloom of Brooklyn in a hard ten-round bout.

At Norristown, Penn.—In a hard fought ten-round bout at the Palace A. C. Freddie Kelly bested Young Jack O'Brien. In the opening round Kelly floored O'Brien twice and in the sixth he staggered him with a right to the jaw.

At Stamford, Conn.—Tommy Shea of New Haven outpointed Young Eddy of Greenwich in an eight-round bout.

WALTER CAMP'S COLUMN

Written for the Boston American.
By WALTER CAMP.

Strange developments come from unexpected causes and the history of athletics as influenced by war has been remarkable in this respect. During our Civil War there was a very pronounced check to the progress of baseball, which had begun to interest the masses previous to that struggle.

No sooner was the war over than there came a great advancement in the game, so much so that in a decade there were diatribes published against it, calling it a mania and instancing the danger of accident in the sport. One paper even went so far as to state that the increase of accident insurance companies was due to it, and that if "the mania does not cease we shall be without able bodied men."

WAR MAY BOOM BASEBALL ABROAD.

It is not outside the realm of possibility that baseball in other countries than our own may take on new life when the present war ends and the people long for amusement in the form of athletic contests to a greater degree from the very frightful experiences through which they are now passing.

The Englishman, even previous to this war, was not as entirely satisfied as he used to be with his cricket. Now, of course, this will be taken as a heresy by any good Britisher, but it is a fact none the less, and can be proven by any one who wishes to investigate.

Whether there is any chance of baseball taking its place is another matter. In fact, only individual Englishmen who come over to this country and stay long enough to see baseball at its best, can really judge the quality of the two games. Several of these men have expressed the wish that baseball would come in favor in England, but as they do not feel confident that it will.

Yet there is more criticism and less interest in cricket than there was ten years ago. In fact, what proves that is that the uglish papers are criticising it more.

"CRICKET NOT FOR YOUNG."

There is a letter in one of the English papers in connection with a cricket-golf discussion which would not have been tolerated a decade ago:

It is all tommy-rot to call cricket a game for young men. If you win the toss with a good wicket you can spend your time smoking and telling broad tales, washed down with occasional drinks in the pavilion. When the skipper has had a whack he closes the innings. Then you go out to field, and the match is drawn, and you may have had a whole afternoon without touching a ball or fielding a ball, just because you don't bowl or wicket-keep. As for playing for your side, that is nonsense. Each captain closes his innings when he likes. If I want open-air treatment I can do it as well on Hampstead and get a donkey ride. That does do the liver good. I can get heaps of rides for one subscription.

The real importance with which the war is regarded in Great Britain is shown by the action of certain officers of golf clubs, which will probably extend throughout the kingdom. Their proposition is to turn the club houses into hospitals, or make such preparations for doing so as shall render them available; to take certain portions or all of the courses and plant grain thereon, and, finally, to turn over the caddies for the assistance of the farmers.

ENGLAND GOLF LEADER.

It is difficult for anyone to realize, unless he has recently come from athletic England, what all this presages. Great Britain was foremost in the development of sport, and up to a few decades ago was the only country that seemed really to be serious about it. Others have now realized the necessity of having a playtime, not only for boys and girls, but for the matured adult, and of all countries England has been the pioneer.

Probably more funds are locked up in valuable property in golf clubs than in any other form of private sport, and more than that, the men who play golf in England make up the backbone of the comparatively well-off classes. Finally, the devotees of no sport in the world is more serious minded in following his favorite pastime. Hence, taking all these things together, one sees how very much in earnest and how seriously England regards the present situation.

THE GOLF MANIA.

The climax of the anti-golf controversy is reached by Brex, of the Savage Club, who writes as follows:

With most of the golfers whom I happen to know golf is no longer a game. It is a deadly and the "militant" hobby. It is admittedly breaking up more homes than drink, needlessly separating more of the married than infidelity, and blighting more careers than the bettings-book. If only I could have conquered my own fooling with the wooden club I would have given up my life to the lovely game. Alas! that significant "if only."

CURLEY ASKS SNODGRASS BE PUNISHED

Mayor Curley has sent a letter to Governor Tener of Pennsylvania, president of the National League, urging him to punish Outfielder Snodgrass of the Giants for "flagrantly and unwarrantedly insulting" those in attendance at the holiday game with the Braves. Also that Umpire Emslie be censured for failing to order Snodgrass from the grounds at the time. Here is the letter:

September 8, 1914.

Hon. John K. Tener,
Executive Chamber,
Harrisburg, Pa.

My dear Governor:

In common with some 32,000 women and men of Boston, I attended the baseball game at Fenway Park on Labor Day afternoon participated in by the New York and Boston National baseball teams.

During the course of the game, one of the New York players named Mr. Snodgrass deliberately insulted every person present by thumbing his nose at the pitcher, and, in consequence of his act, when passing to his position in the outfield, he was the target for various missiles from persons attending the game who were righteously and rightly incensed at his conduct.

It became necessary, in consequence of his thumbing his nose at the outfield bleachers, for the mounted police to ride through the crowd with a view to preserving order.

I requested the umpire in charge of the outfield to remove the man from the grounds, which he refused to do, as he did not consider the violation of sufficient weight to warrant such action.

In my opinion, there is no more manly or wholesome sport than baseball, and it has become a part of American outdoor life patronized by ladies and gentlemen, and when a player so far forgets himself as to cease to be a gentleman, as in the case of Mr. Snodgrass, I believe it the duty of the management to not only censure the umpire for his refusal to order the removal of the player from the grounds, but to punish the player for his refusal to order and warranted "insult of the public attending the game.

Sincerely yours,
JAMES M. CURLEY,
Mayor.

Over 200,000 See Giants in 11 Days

The Giants recently have been playing to a run of big crowds. On August 26 in St. Louis the Giants and Cardinals played a double header to an overflow crowd, about 24,000. On the 27th in Cincinnati 12,000 saw the Cubs and Giants. On the 29th in Chicago the game teams had at least 23,000 spectators, and on Sunday, the 30th, 15,000. At least Saturday's double header at Ebbets Field there were 25,000. The two Labor Day games at Fenway Park drew 74,000, and yesterday's attendance was about 15,000, according to reports. The figures named reached the total of 157,000. Adding the 60 game in Pittsburg on the way home and three others in Brooklyn last week the total at the Giants' games for their last eleven playing days is over 200,000.

Four Wrestlers Sign for Mat Carnival

Yousouf Hussane, the crack Bulgarian wrestle, and Dr. Ben Roller, of Seattle, have been matched by Promoter George Tuohey to meet in one of the star bouts that will make up the all-star wrestling program to be decided in Mechanics Building on Wednesday evening, September 16.

Tuohey is now trying to bring together Pat Connolly, champion of Great Britain, and Barkus, the Finlander, who has just reached this country, for one of the other numbers of the program.

A place on the program will be held open for Cyclone Burns, who is due to reach here next week.

MITCHELL'S SIDELIGHTS ON SPORTS

HAVING administered a good swift kick to the Giants, the Braves find themselves today leading the National League race for the third time this season.

They took the undisputed lead on September 2 by winning a double header from Philadelphia while the Giants were losing to Brooklyn. The next day the Giants won a double-header and the Braves lost and they went back to second place, half a game away.

ON Friday last both teams won. On Saturday, the Braves won while the Giants broke even on a double header which tied things up again. Then the Giants came to Boston. By winning the morning game on Labor Day our boys went into first place, but in the afternoon they lost which tied the teams up again. Yesterday the Braves won. They are now in first place.

Take it by and large this column does not see how the Giants can win a pennant. We should say that Mr. McGraw would have to be supplied with most of the horseshoes in the neighborhood of the Polo Grounds, to say nothing of luck, hard, fine, honest fortune, chance and a liberal supply of kidney vetch if he expects to pilot his team to a fourth consecutive winning of the National League flag.

This column does not see the Giants. It does not see its pitchers—and pitchers are rated as being 50 to 70 per cent. of a ball club; it does not see a superabundance of fighting spirit (which is necessary); it does not see an array of sluggers that could be counted on to bat out a victory against great odds.

IF IT were not for the fact that luck cuts such a figure in baseball this column would say that the Giants hadn't a chance. But, of course, they have a chance and an excellent one. The game isn't over by any means, and while the Giants may win the pennant, this column is willing to venture the opinion that they haven't any license to win it.

RUBE MARQUARD, McGraw's left hander, lost his eighth straight game yesterday. Rube didn't have anything worth mentioning. He had no control and he had no speed. He had his moth-eaten habit of serving a very slow ball, followed immediately by what he considered a very fast one. But the fast one had no jump on it and the Braves hammered his offerings to all corners of the lot — good, hard, straight drives that meant business.

In the fifth inning Mr. Marquard was canned and then Mr. Fromme proceeded to make Mr. Marquard look like a good pitcher by comparison. Two innings was all that McGraw cared to see of Fromme so he retired, making way for "Hooks" Wiltse, the veteran of uncounted baseball years, who pitched better ball than any of his predecessors.

THE Braves beat the great Mathewson, they beat Marquard and Fromme and they lost to Tesreau who seems to be the only reliable pitcher McGraw has to depend upon.

BUT it is not alone in pitchers that the Giants seem to be weak in this crucial period of the National League race. Merkle, their regular first baseman is batting the ball at all. His work swings in yesterday's game were pitiful. He looked so very bad when he fanned the first time up that McGraw made a bold shift, sending Snodgrass to first base and sending Beecher to centre field.

Merkle has been one of the best hitters in the National League in his day. Now he cannot hit a balloon. Doyle, the second baseman throws like a school girl and his hitting has fallen away off. Fletcher, never counted a fence-buster, is batting fourth on the New York list. He is not "hustling" any fences at present. Murray and Robertson alternate in the outfield. McGraw thinks Robertson is likely to break up a game with his hitting, but as Robertson continually refuses to break up any games, McGraw sends Murray in to play the outfield. The case of Murray and Robertson seems to be one where McGraw is far from certain and takes it out in guessing.

Eddie Grant, a fine man personally, grew gray in the service of the Philadelphia club. He was swapped to Cincinnati in a big deal of players three or four years ago and finally drifted to the Giants. Last season he filled in when some infielder was injured.

Now Grant is the regular third baseman for the New York club. This veteran has supplanted young Stock who began the season at third base.

WE should like to see the Braves call a rehearsal for their double steal, which seems to work badly, but otherwise they look mighty good.

We are satisfied that with an even break of luck they will go forward in the right way.

That's the way we feel this ninth day of September, 1914.

BURNS in left field (except when the sun gets in Murray's eyes and Burns is forced to shift places with the red-top), is the sole individual who is regularly delivering the goods on McGraw's team.

Every year an automobile manufacturer gives a car to the best player in both the National and American Leagues who is adjudged to be the best man in his league, all things considered.

The gossip is that this year the prize lays between Burns of the Giants, and Maranville, of the Braves. If the author or writer of this column had a vote in the matter he would cast his ballot for Maranville.

Be this as it may, Burns is the only real, bona-fide member of the Giants who looks like a real thing this year — excepting, of course, Mathewson, who can take his turn in the box once in four or five days, and the catching staff.

BOTH Meyers and McLean are very capable men. We did not see the Chief in the series just closed, because he was suffering from a slight injury, but McLean, who is strictly on the waterwagon this year, has been catching fine ball for McGraw.

Take, then, Mathewson, Tesreau, Burns and the catchers and you have the strength of the Giants as it has been showing for the past six weeks. They are not enough to win the National League and they have no license to win it. Yet they may win it. And there you are.

THIS column has nothing to do with politics, or the politics of politicians, or their plays (real or grandstand), but it may interest the Mayor to know that the consensus of opinion regarding the Snodgrass-Curley affair does not showup any bouquets on his honor.

WHEN Mr. Curley walked out on the field at Fenway Park on Monday afternoon and demanded of the umpire that Snodgrass be removed from the game, Captain Larry Doyle, of the Giants, sidled up and said:

"Who are you, anyway? Go on; get out of here!"

Mr. Curley, ignoring Captain Doyle, continued to address his remarks to the umpire.

"Say," insisted Captain Doyle, "you in the light suit; go hunt your hole; get off the field; you're delaying the game."

After Mr. Curley had left the scene and things had quieted down, someone told Doyle that the person he was addressing was the Mayor of Boston.

"Holy Joe," exclaimed Doyle, "I thought he was a 'bug.' On the level I did."

At the hotel after the game, some of the New York players tried to get hold of a blank subpoena to fill out, summonsing the captain of the Giants to the Mayor's office on the charge of lese majesty, but the plot failed.

JOHNNY EVERS has proved himself to be of untold benefit to the Braves this season. He has worked under the most adverse circumstances. Despite a nervous illness that is hard to overcome, he has been in the game whenever he has been able to stand on his legs.

In view of his grand work it seems a pity to call attention to the fact that Johnnie is a bit slower on the bases than he ought to be. This was noticed in both Monday's and Tuesday's games.

Harvard-Princeton in Golf Title Match

GARDEN CITY, N. Y., Sept. 9.—Harvard and Princeton fight it out today for the championship of the Intercollegiate Golf Association, when their teams will meet in the final matches for the first time since 1905, when the Cambridge men were the victors over the same links.

Yale was put out of the running for the first time in seven years, losing to the Princeton team by a point score of 5 to 4.

Harvard almost made a clean sweep of the nine contests with Pennsylvania, winning all the singles, but losing one of the foursomes.

Post Season Series for N. E. Ball Title

The series for the New England championship between Lawrence and New London will start September 15 at New London. The series will consist of the best four of seven games, September 15 and 16 at New London, September 18 and 19 at Lawrence, alternating between the cities until a decision is reached.

$2,000 Nutmeg Won by King Couchman

HARTFORD, Ct., Sept. 9.—Tommy Murphy landed King Couchman a winner in the Nutmeg 2.10 pace for $2,000 at Charter Oak.

Airdale won the 2:24 trot for three-year-olds in straight heats and in fast time.

Martha Bellini won the first heat of the 2:12 trot in 2:08½, but was distanced in the third and the race went to Brighton B, the last heat being in 2:12½.

Haverhill Trotter Wins Feature Race

WHEELING, W. Va., Sept. 8.—James W., the roan gelding, by Sincror, owned and driven by Lester Dore of Haverhill, Mass., surprised the talent by winning the 2:16 trot in the first day's Lake Erie circuit racing here. Farmer Gently, the heavily backed favorite in every heat, won second money. The best time was 2:14¼, in the second and third heats.

Two Flag Winners in Texas League

DALLAS, Tex., Sept. 9.—Failure to play nine innings in the first game of a double-header with Waco, which Houseton won, cost Houston the 1914 Texas League pennant. The game in question was cut to seven innings by agreement, and Waco's protest that all first games must be nine innings was upheld by Secretary Farrell of the National Commission. As a result, Houston and Waco are tied for the first place. The season has ended, and unofficial percentages gave Houston half a game lead.

Holds Rivals Hitless Nine Innings; Loses

PITTSFIELD, Sept. 9.—Hartford defeated Pittsfield 1 to 0 in eleven innings yesterday. Taylor, for Pittsfield, did not allow a hit until two were out in the tenth, but a base on balls, followed by Curry's triple, netted Hartford's run in the eleventh.

Constance, Unjustly Accused, Fights Her Battle Through the Long Night

By VIRGINIA TERHUNE VAN DE WATER.

CHAPTER XLVII.

WITH feverish haste Constance Medford prepared for the night. Weary and spent, she felt that the only relief in store for her was to lose consciousness in sleep. She kept telling herself that she must not think, and all the while her thoughts chased each other disconnectedly through her brain. Keenly alive to every sound in the house, she fancied she heard the telephone ring downstairs, but would not allow herself to pause in the brushing of her hair to listen.

When, a little later, her uncle's light tap sounded on her door, she started violently, and her hands trembled as she fastened the wrapper which she threw about her before going to receive his message.

"I promised," John Hale said in a low voice, "to tell you what I heard from the hospital. Dr. Sheffield just rang me up to say that there is little that is new to report. The patient has partially recovered consciousness and seems to be suffering much pain. There may be, as the doctor has already told us, some internal injury. Yet the heart is strong—and the patient may recover."

The door closed and he was gone without waiting to hear the girl's faltering "Thank you!" She stood for a long while just where he had left her. She longed so much wildly after him, to throw herself upon his breast, to beg him to tell her if he thought Tom was going to live. Twenty-four hours ago she could have done this to the elderly man who, she had believed then, loved her. Now she could not. She was resentful as she recalled how he had spoken of Tom only as "the patient," just as he might have spoken of the most casual stranger. What was the matter? What had Tom done? What had she done to merit such treatment?

DASHES WATER OVER FACE

Going into her dressing-room she dashed cold water over her face and neck. She must try to cool her brain, to see matters more clearly. She brushed her hair, put on her night-gown, and knelt, as she had always done since babyhood, at the side of her bed to say her prayers. She repeated the familiar words, but they meant nothing to her. At last, with a sigh that was almost a sob, she exclaimed: "Oh, Lord! I am too tired to pray! You know that!" and rose from her knees.

Who would dare assert that this prayer, coming from the heart, did not reach the living ear, and that the Lord did not know and understand?

Throwing herself upon her bed, the weary girl tried to sleep. But it was in vain. Conjecture, memories, fear stabbed her to vivid consciousness whenever a sense of drowsiness stole over her. She knew she had a painful problem to face and she could not sleep until she had faced it. Finally, her eyes staring straight before her, she whipped her jaded mind to the task of thinking connectedly. Instead of flying from one subject to another as it had been doing for the past hour.

The moonlight was so bright now that she could dimly trace the outline of the pattern on the wall-paper on which her eyes were fixed. Little by little she reviewed the events of the day and evening. She recalled every word of Edith's insinuations, then she remembered Mr. Hale's accusing query just before he opened the front door for her a while ago.

What did father and daughter suspect? What did they believe of her and Tom? She had pushed this question from her again and again. Now she forced herself to answer it. Her uncle's query and his ensuing anger made the matter so plain that she could not deceive herself about it any longer. And as she looked at the naked facts of his suspicions and of Edith's suggestions—placed in her mind, Constance Medford, by Malbone, uttered a moan of anguish so poignant as to be almost physical.

Could any one who knew her believe such things of her? Hot waves of shame and of rage engulfed her and she felt as if she were drowning in a sea of misery. Only a pure-minded, straightforward woman, whose life had been protected from the very shadow of evil, could understand the girl's suffering.

SHE FIGHTS HER BATTLE

The hours dragged away while she lay fighting her battle alone. And all at once the tempest was succeeded by a strange calm. She was no longer a young and frightened girl, she told herself, but a woman who must meet life as it had been forced upon her through no fault of her own. She thought she was calm, yet underneath the hot fire of resentment still burned.

When at last the birds began to herald the coming of the day she had reached a decision. She could see the first step she must take. She would tell her uncle of this first step when he sent to her for an "explanation." She would give him no explanation. It he could think such of her she would not stoop to deny it.

She was supposed to have reached this decision without counting the cost. Youth is strong and swift to resent and to punish injustice.

It had been a wonderfully light night since she had come to her room; she mused, as, rising wearily from her bed, she closed the blinds to shut out the dawn. A cool wind had sprung up, and she shivered as it blew against her body. She felt strangely weak and her bones ached. She must sleep, or she might be ill here, in this house, which she was determined to leave so soon. Now that she had reached a decision, she could surely force herself to rest for a while.

In the way painfully familiar to the sufferer from insomnia, she beat up and turned over her pillows before lying down again. The action brought to her mind the recollection of how, when as a little girl she had had some childish illness, her mother had "smoothed" her pillows for her, and with the remembrance came a gush of merciful tears—relieving the tension of the overstrained nerves.

"Oh, mother! mother!" the girl sobbed, burying her face in the bed clothing that the sound of her passionate weeping might not be heard. "If I only had you now! If you were only here!"

Perhaps her mother was there. For, an hour later, when Mrs. Hale, worrying about "that child," stole softly to the door and opened it, she found Constance was lying, fast asleep, with a smile almost of contentment on her lips.

"I don't know what's wrong," Mrs. Hale murmured as she returned to her own room, "for John wouldn't talk about it last night. But this morning I intend to know what the matter is."

Hats Large and Hats Small

(REPRODUCED BY SPECIAL ARRANGEMENT WITH HARPER'S BAZAR.)

There Will Be No Medium Sizes on the List of Fashion, Declares A Leading Authority

From the September Number of Harper's Bazar

1. The small hats fit snugly, as does this plaited silk toque from a noted designer

2—One of many odd shapes" in tete-de-negre velvet. In the roll of the brim there is the suggestion of the cavalier, the feather adding another jaunty touch.

3—The satin hat bids fair to carry everything before it. In this toque the height is achieved not only by the loops of ribbon, but by the flare of the brim.

4—An outline of monkey skin appears on some of the hats and is particularly effective when lined with black velvet; "crouse en soleil" is poised on right brim.

5—Iridescent quills lend a chic and appropriate trimming to the trot-about hat of plush in a soft brown tone and in the "pirate cannotier" shape.

The Diary of a Bachelor

MAX ASKS THE MOMENTOUS QUESTION

By MAX

AUGUST 10.

The last week has been about the most surprising series of unexpected events that I have ever known. And at the end of it I find myself honestly in love with—"the girl I left behind me." No, I don't mean the girl I left behind me on American shores, for the ocean lies ahead again and the coast of France is somewhere off in the blue distance and I find myself the bluest thing over—in the middle distance!

A week ago I left Kathleen Greenleck at the Hotel Des Konigen in Basle on the Rhine and went down into Switzerland to rescue Sally Spencer from the penniless condition of the American in Europe who didn't happen to be traveling around with a little gold mine in his pocket.

When I arrived at Geneva, I found Sally sitting on the terrace of the Beau Rivage. One of her trunks was acting as her chair. She pluckily informed me that she knew of Mont Blanc was making her visit a pleasant one and that she was mighty glad the hotel had not closed its doors until I arrived, as it might have been cold sitting out on the edge of Lac Leman all night!

But after I had found a caddy and had helped the pile her things and bags on his ramshackle vehicles and had piloted her to the station and into a compartment that we shared with several excited Frenchmen, she collapsed and gave herself up wholeheartedly to weeping on my shoulder.

Now when a woman does that, a man generally feels called upon to comfort her with the strength of his arms. But I only found a clean pocket-handkerchief and used it as a pad to soak up some of her tears. The thought of Kathleen Greenleck made me a little cold to Sally. But it was quite evident that the fat Frenchmen thought they scented a romance.

We got back to Basle easily enough and there we joined the Greenlecks, who had secured a car and several cans of "petrol" with which to motor to Havre and thence across to Southampton, and there take ship for home.

A TANTALIZING SITUATION.

The business of motoring through a country where rapidly mobilizing armies are scurrying up and down the roads and requisitioning everything available as they come, is one that makes heavy drafts on a man's nerves and vitality. But when in addition he has in the car with him a woman who is violently emotional and entirely dependent on his encouragement and protection, and also a girl with whose serene manner and beautiful nature he is rapidly falling in love, you complicate the situation badly.

But to make my position particularly unendurable, Sally, with whom I had once had a strong desire to break all relations, sentimental and otherwise, had no one to depend on but me—and Kathleen Greenleck was under her father's care. A tantalizing situation for a lover—truly and in sooth!

We managed to get through somehow—but every detail of that ride will stay with me through life, my Friend Diary. We snailed up hard roads. We fatly begged for food at little out-of-the-way inns—and the food we got was only of inferior quality and a bit short on supply. We slept only a few hours at a time and sometimes we snatched those brief respites while the car was whirling us on to the sea and safety.

Kathleen was very gentle and kind to Sally—as, indeed, she is to everybody. But Sally was variable in mood. There were moments when I even suspected her of trying to flirt with Jared E. Greenick, Esquire. And in the midst of all our difficulties I found myself laughing at the vision of Sally as my mother-in-law, if I were every so lucky as to win pretty Kathleen.

When we got to Havre after the long days when I was tortured by bad plisted her to take station and into a compartment that we shared with several excited Frenchmen, she collapsed and gave herself up wholeheartedly to weeping on my shoulder.

Now when a woman does that, a man generally feels called upon to comfort her with the strength of his arms. But I only found a clean pocket-handkerchief and used it as a pad to soak up some of her tears. The thought of Kathleen Greenick made me a little cold to Sally. YOUR OPPORTUNITY IS IN CO-OPERATIVE MONEY-MAKING

EVERY CITIZEN OF NEW ENGLAND ought to read the article in Collier's Weekly for August 22 on "Co-operation on a Business Basis." It tells of a great New England success in co-operative storekeeping and points out a fact we have often emphasized: CO-OPERATION IN BUSINESS IS THE WATCHWORD OF THE TIMES.

"From now on," says Frank Chase, the writer, "we expect that American co-operators will invest an increasing amount IN THEIR OWN BUSINESS rather than in enterprises run for the benefit of CAPITALISTS, where safe investments seldom yield more than 5 per cent. The conflict BETWEEN COMMERCIALISM AND CO-OPERATION is inevitable."

Thinkers see the value of co-operation.

"Commercialism has one big gun—capital," says Mr. Purington, the organizer of the New England Co-operative Society, "but we have another tool of battle—publicity. THE PRINTED WORD MAKES PEOPLE THINK, and THINKERS MAKE GOOD CO-OPERATORS."

That's the truth as WE have found it. We are making a success in co-operation with several hundred other New England thinkers.

A Strong Combination

For Making Money

HARD THINKING and CAREFUL PLANNING create MONEY-MAKING OPPORTUNITIES. Over and over again the brain power of ONE MAN has made FORTUNES for many others. IF YOUR THOUGHTS TURN TO MONEY-MAKING we invite you to learn of our CO-OPERATIVE PLAN.

Study Co-Operative Possibilities

Be a THINKER! Learn what CO-OPERATION is DOING. How long do you think it will be before you will ever amass a fortune from SMALL SAVINGS or at the fixed rates of interest obtained from investments in stocks and bonds? Do you know of ANY capitalist who made his money by investing at FIXED STANDARD RATES? THINK!

And do you see any better way to make money as capitalists make it than by COMBINING YOUR MONTHLY SAVINGS WITH OTHERS so that you, yourself, may obtain DIRECT, and NOT second-hand, the REAL EARNINGS OF YOUR MONEY?

Definition of Co-Operation

"Co-operation comes to the public as a system of industry and commerce, a scheme of production and distribution, knit together for wholesale supply and retail distribution, OFFERING DIVIDENDS TO THE MASSES INSTEAD OF PROFITS TO THE FEW. Yet in and above all this is a purpose still larger—to unite the people through their needs, to organize purchasing power and productive energy for the control of industry; to eliminate extortion and excessive wastes and expenses; to benefit labor, and to render mutual aid.

Co-Operation—Large Profits—Write for Our Co-Operative Book

Our business is NOT a get-rich-quick scheme. It will not pay tremendous dividends over night; but ITS EARNING POWER SHOULD INCREASE STEADILY FROM YEAR TO YEAR AND PAY RICHLY FOR THE WAITING.

The earnings are coming, not from speculation, but FROM ACTUAL PRODUCTION OF FOOD PRODUCTS. The plan is co-operative and profit-sharing WITHOUT FIXED LIMITATION OF EARNING CAPACITY—and we wish to interest others with us. If desired the shares may be purchased through small monthly payments.

We own large plantations on the Isle of Pines, West Indies, where we are growing grapefruit and pineapples. By owning the land, raising the fruit and selling direct we eliminate a great deal of expense; and THIS MEANS LARGE PROFITS for the shareholders.

We have just received from the bindery a BEAUTIFULLY ILLUSTRATED BOOK, which will interest every man and woman in New England whose thoughts turn to the subject of MAKING MONEY or of MAKING MORE MONEY. This book contains nearly 100 illustrations, many of them in colors. It describes in detail how we raise grapefruit and pineapples and how WE MARKET THEM RIGHT HERE IN NEW ENGLAND, either in their natural condition or after they have gone through our preserving plant at 110 Broad St., Boston.

In the book you will find MORE CONVINCING EVIDENCE as to the success of our plans, more FOOD FOR THOUGHT than we could give in a WHOLE PAGE of this newspaper.

"Let Us Have Peace"

A great mass meeting will be held on Boston Common next Sunday afternoon to help raise a nation-wide cry—LET THE WAR CEASE!

"Let us raise our voice so loudly, and exercise our influence so strongly, that Europe will be compelled to stop for a moment and to listen to the voice of reason, to the appeal of humanity."—WILLIAM RANDOLPH HEARST.

Let Everybody Help---Attend the Meeting Yourself---Urge Your Friends to Go

Neutral Today, Our People Must Be Alert and Alive to Their Future Needs

The intrusion of Japan into the European war is a matter to excite the especial interest and attention of the American public.

Japan has no quarrel whatever with Germany or Austria, no reason, as far as surface indications are concerned, for injecting herself into the European situation.

What, then, was the secret or subterranean reason for Japan's action?

Obviously it is a very intimate and strongly binding alliance with Great Britain, an alliance so binding that when Great Britain attacked Germany, Japan was compelled by the terms of the alliance, to attack Germany also.

An alliance which compels Japan to support England in a war which England is prosecuting against Germany very obviously would compel Great Britain to support Japan in a war which Japan might prosecute against the United States.

If any doubt this self-evident conclusion, their doubts must be dispelled by Japan's own interpretation of the treaty.

On September 5 Baron Kato, Minister of Foreign Affairs of Japan, said, in explanation of his country's attitude, that "England asked Japan's assistance, and Japan NECESSARILY complied."

Plainly, then, the terms of the treaty are such that when England asked Japan's assistance Japan was compelled of NECESSITY to comply. And equally plainly, if Japan asked England's assistance, England would be compelled of NECESSITY to comply.

This support of Japan by Great Britain would the more surely occur after this European war than before it, because there will now be not only the terms of the alliance between Japan and Great Britain, whatever they may be, but also the obligation on the part of Great Britain to make some return for Japan's honorable adherence to the alliance and for the assistance given her by Japan in this crucial period.

Great Britain has often assured the government and the people of the United States that no such intimate alliance with Japan existed, but the plain facts and Japan's frank acknowledgment are incontrovertible.

The action of Japan is wholly inexplicable upon any other assumption.

The United States is neutral in this war, and must for every reason remain neutral.

There are obvious reasons why the people of the United States should not favor any one of the combatants, but there are particular reasons, and powerful reasons, why the people of the United States should favor their own country, should be alert and alive to the interests of their own country, and should learn from this war, and from the revelations of this war, where the interests of their own country lie.

Never before in the history of the country has the farseeing wisdom of George Washington in enjoining our government to keep free from entangling alliances with foreign powers been more apparent.

But if, in order to keep free from conflicts like that now raging in Europe, we must not enter into any alliance with any other nation, then must we all the more depend upon our own resources and have resources sufficient to depend upon.

England's security is due to her army, and to her navy alone.

She is separated by only a few miles of water from the mainland of Europe, from the coast of France, the very country which is now being overwhelmed by the German armies.

Yet England is free from attack and safe from attack. Her navy guards her and is sufficient to defend her from the mightiest army that Europe has ever known.

We have no great army, and we want none. We have no allies which have great armies, and we want none.

But we should have a great navy.

Furthermore, we should have a Panama Canal owned by the United States, controlled by the United States, fortified by the United States, and in time of war at the service of the United States alone.

We should have the canal so fully and so firmly in our undisputed possession that our fleet could pass through it to defend the Atlantic coast or the Pacific coast at will, and so strongly fortified that no hostile fleet could pass through it, either by right or might, to attack our coasts or injure any part of our country.

We should have a navy great enough to protect our east coast and our west coast, great enough to protect our people and our commerce in all parts of the world, great enough to make us independent of all alliances and sufficiently strong without alliances, great enough to defend us even against hostile alliances which may some day threaten us, or which may already threaten us, without our knowledge.

We want no war, but we want secure protection from war, and without protection a willingness to avoid war is not sufficient.

Belgium was anxious to avoid war, but was compelled to fight.

If the people of our nation imagine that the reason we are not involved in this war is because of any special diplomatic inspiration of our government, or because of any impregnable situation of our country, they are as absurd in their assumption as the ostrich, who thinks if he hides his head in the sand he will not be hit by the hunter.

With our head in the sand of self-deception and our eyes full of diplomatic dust, with our chests unduly inflated with self-satisfaction, and our big national body fat with wealth and soft with ease, we offer a peculiarly good target for the European or Asiatic hunter, and the only reason that we are not hit by the military marauder at this time is because his guns on this occasion are aimed in an entirely different direction.

Whichever nation triumphs in this European conflict, however, is exceedingly likely, sooner or later, to aim its victorious guns at our big and rich and defenceless country.

Whichever nation wins in this European conflict will immediately sally forth to secure the commercial, financial and territorial supremacy of the world.

Immediately it will come into contact and competition with a rich and resourceful rival, the United States of America.

More wars are caused by commercial rivalries than by political differences. Sooner or later, then, the victorious European nation, reliant on European methods, mindful of the advantages of its martial victories and observant of our naval neglect and military weakness, will refer its commercial contest to the court of last resort among nations, the force of arms.

We always are and always will be anxious to avoid war, but in the light of recent events it is evident that no country can tell when it will be compelled to defend itself.

A great navy is our best protection, and all farseeing citizens of the United States hope that the party now in power at Washington will end its foolish and dangerous "no navy" policy and proceed promptly to give our country the protection it needs and demands.

WILLIAM RANDOLPH HEARST.

The Whole Community Wishes the Governor a Speedy Return to Good Health

It cannot be doubted that every citizen of Massachusetts will regret Governor Walsh's unfortunate accident.

An amiable and kind-hearted man who is Governor always enjoys universal good will, even among those who do not agree with his public policies.

With none denying the Governor their good will and with probably a plurality of our citizens believing that he is not less a wise than a good public servant, the Governor ought to have a quick recovery. The wish of all is a recognized force in nature.

The AMERICAN joins with the whole community in wishing the Governor a comfortable and speedy convalescence.

KITCHES
THEM THINGS AIR MIGHTY HANDY WHEN THEY GO
AND I PROMISED TO MEET NAT AT THE BEACH AT 9
I HOPE NO ONE COMES THAT I KNOW
ITS NOTHING GIRLS ONLY A FEW EINDERS IN THE CORBORATOR
MABEL MOVIE QUEEN
T. E. POWERS

The Bungalows have invited Mabel, the movie queen, and Pearl, the waitress, for a spin down to the beach, but something has happened to the Ash Pan and there'll be no joy ride today. Pearl is very much put out and Mabel is very angry. They wanted to show their new hats at the beach. I'll tell you, boys, the soft-coal burners are the best.

The Science of Eugenics to Revolutionize World

By ELLA WHEELER WILCOX

Copyright, 1914, by the Star Company

IT will be a great day for the world when every clergyman or other man empowered to perform the marriage service requires a physician's certificate that both parties are physically and mentally competent to undertake the responsibilities of bringing children into the world.

Such a day will eventually come.

For the science of eugenics, now in its infancy, will dominate the intellectual world by and by, and an entirely new order of things will exist.

Only the fit will be permitted to populate the world. Mothers will be taught the great law of parental influence; and as Mary Dale has said:

"Children will be taught the elements of heredity first through the forms of the plant world; they will learn in this manner its principles." The products of the plant world, with their grace and beauty, malformations or weaknesses, will be fit subjects to demonstrate the forms of heredity. They will prove splendid ways and means to teach children something of parenthood, the right or wrong choice, and the effect of either upon the descendants.

This system of teaching will be in wise hands. Every effort will be made to render no blunt personal allusions; step by step will the eugenic education continue, until the mind of the child has been made sufficiently strong and intelligent to understand what heredity means to the human family. The work of eugenic teachers will certainly be of an interesting character.

These teachings will lead to the profounder education to be taught that the position for every boy to strive for, no matter whether he accepts it or not, is for worthy and honorable fatherhood; for girls, splendid and motherly motherhood. All other lines of education will keep step with this end in view. Thus will be demonstrated that righteousness exalteth a nation not only in the spiritual, but also in the most concrete sense.

To prove the reason why proper mating and real marriage constitute something more than love and initiative: Granted that love be the noblest and greatest factor in a true marriage, it must be supported by a sound mind in a sound body to be eugenical in its conception of bettering the human race.

Real love is never a question of the senses, since the soul is its chief administrator. The spirituality of a marriage is in seeking to make the issues of the marriage as perfect as possible. The fidelity of pure love is the keystone in the arch of its making.

"Woman is Nature's supreme instrument of the future." When men recognize this generally there will be a different attitude shown toward the responsibilities of parenthood.

The foundation of domestic happiness is faith in the virtue of woman. The foundation of political happiness is in the integrity of man. The foundation of all happiness, temporal and eternal, is faith in the goodness, the righteousness, the mercy and the love of God.

It is to be questioned if one young man lives who would willingly bring into the world a deformed, diseased or insane child if he knew he could prevent it.

And these are the truths eugenics will teach the world.

A Great Story of War

It is entitled "The Last Shot," It was written by Frederick Palmer, the famous war correspondent and novelist, who is now with the army of the allies.

It is prophetic in its vision and presents an unsurpassed picture of war as it really is.

The AMERICAN is going to print it.

The first instalment will appear in the AMERICAN tomorrow.

And, whatever blood flows in your veins, when you have read the last chapter you will say "So may this war end."
